

A FREE GIFT!
EVERY WEEK!

HANNA- BARBERA'S Yogi

AND HIS TOY

Nº 5

EVERY FRIDAY

10p

FREE INSIDE

THIS SUPER AIRBORNE
MAGILLA
GORILLA

HE'S BIG! HE'S BOUNCY!

HE ALWAYS LANDS ON HIS FEET!

HE'S FUN!

HE EVEN MADE THE CAT
LAUGH!

PLUS ALL YOUR FAVOURITES FROM T.V.

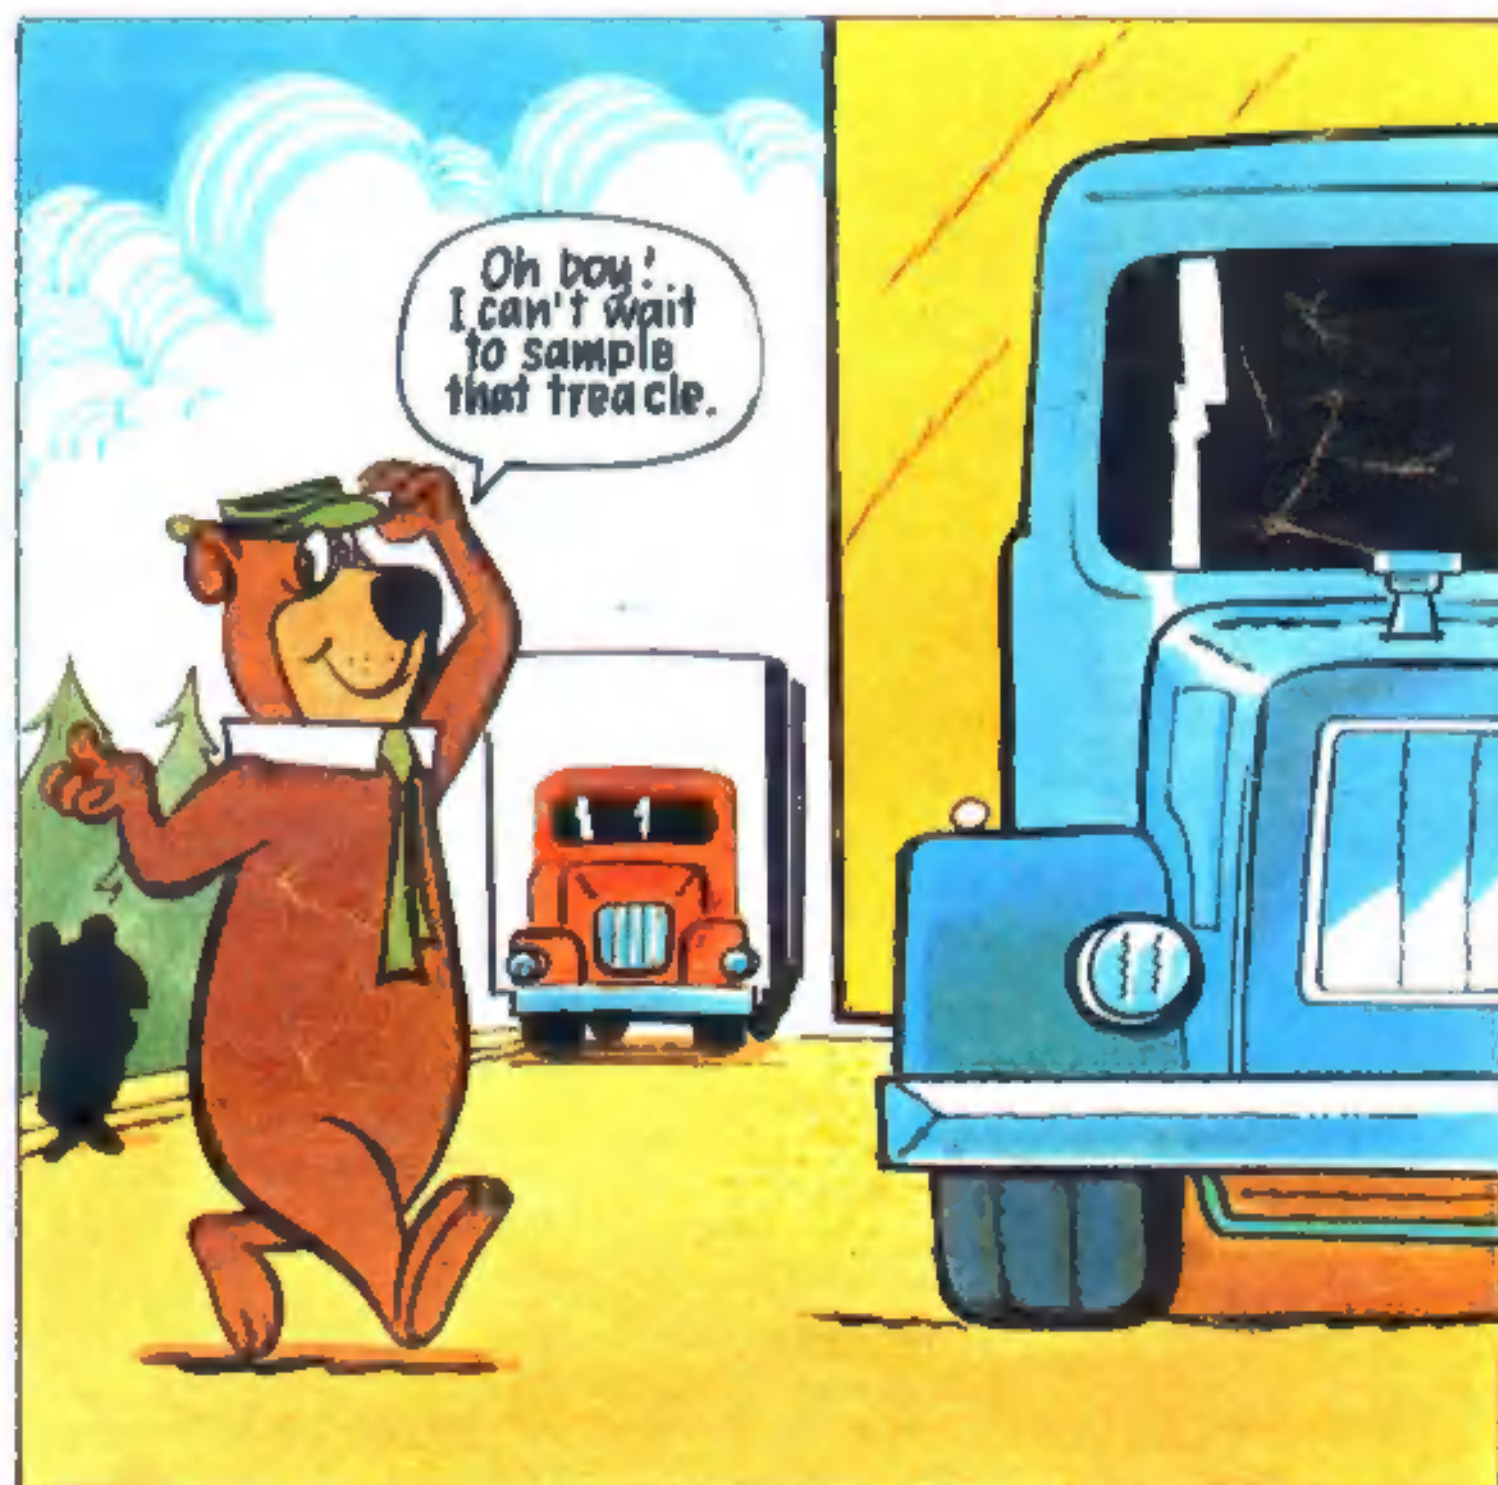

The Tales of YOGI BEAR

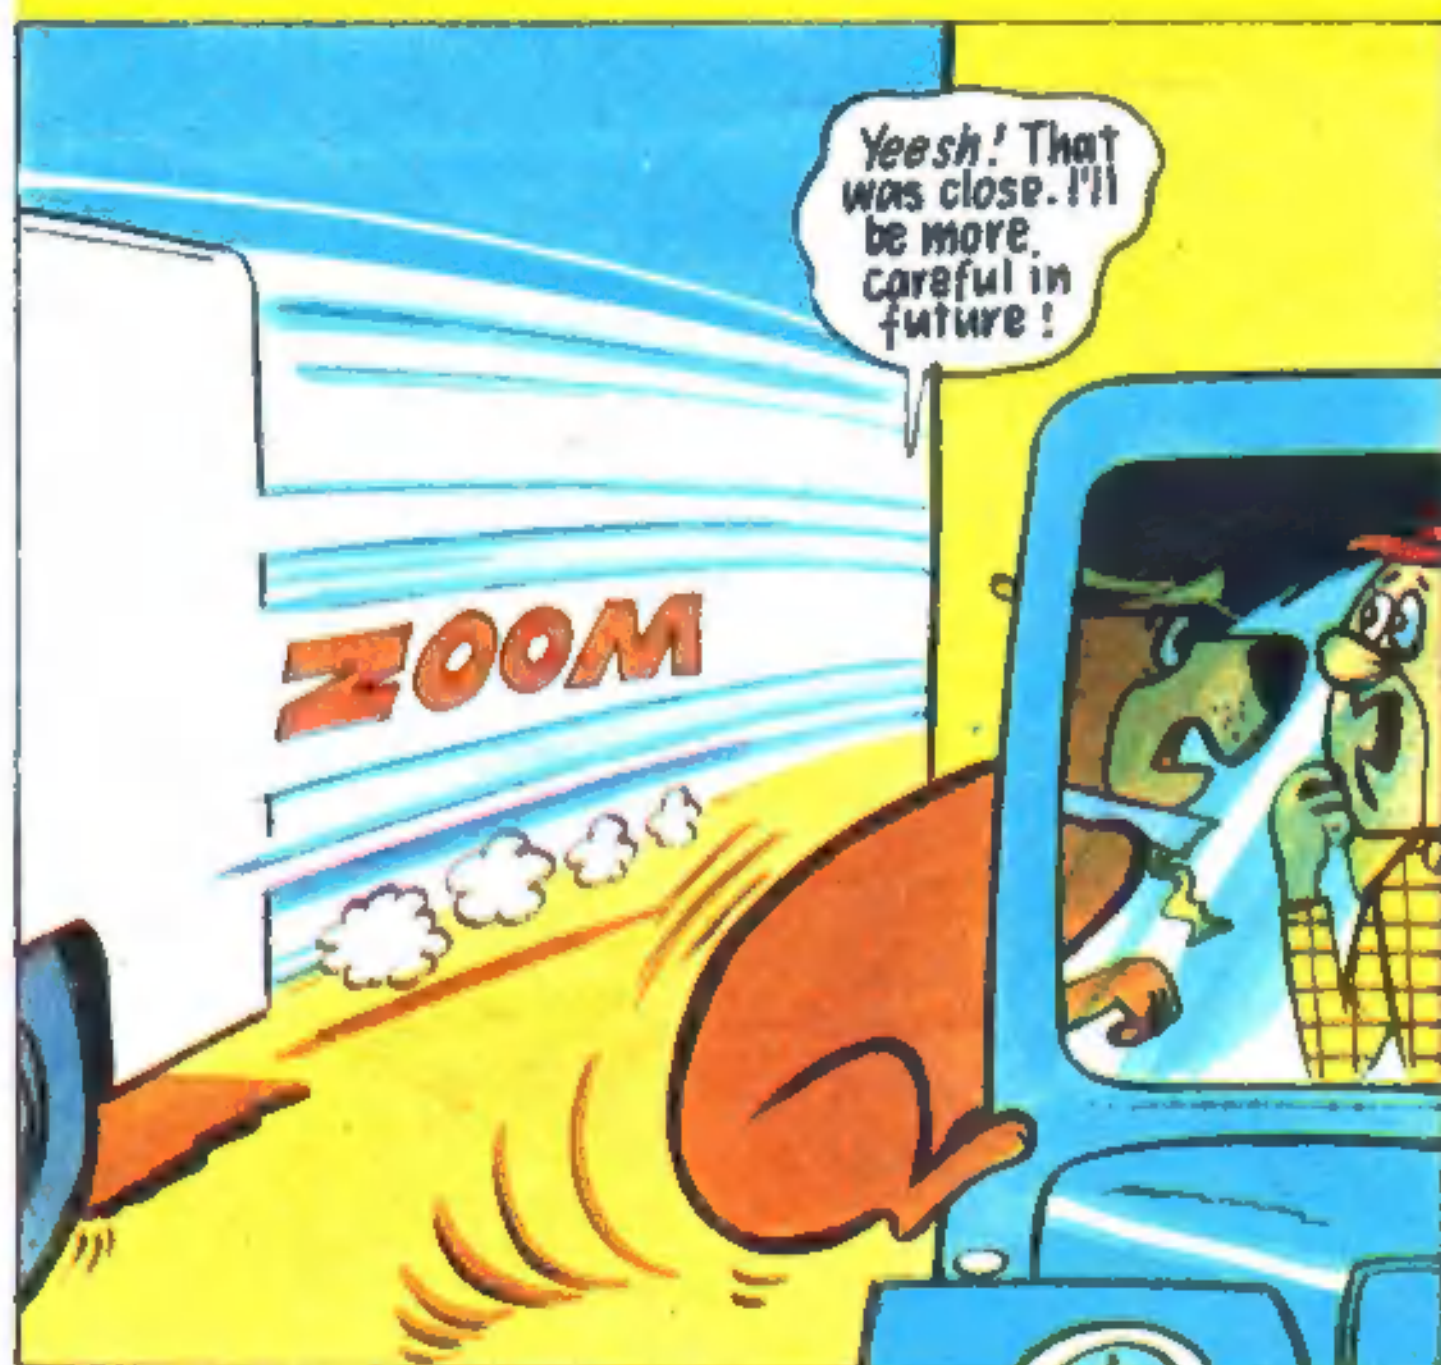

TREACLE BY THE LORRYLOAD

1. Yogi's sense of smell is above average when there's food about. He started sniffing the air when he saw a parked van one day. "Come on, Boo Boo," he said. "I'm sure there's treacle in that lorry. Let's go and ask the driver for a sample of it."

2. Boo Boo didn't want to cross the busy road. Yogi told him they could remember to use the Highway Code before crossing. But Yogi was in such a hurry to get to the treacle, he didn't look both ways. Another lorry was coming down the road!

3. Yogi had just reached the treacle lorry when the driver of the other van decided to teach him not to cross the road without looking properly. He hooted very loudly. Yogi jumped in surprise and put his head through the window of the treacle lorry.

4. The driver was very surprised when he saw a big bear looking into his cabin. He didn't give Yogi a chance to tell him that he was a friendly bear. He just drove off quickly, leaving Yogi hanging in mid air before he fell down with a loud BUMP!

5. Boo Boo remembered his Highway Code and crossed the road carefully to see if Yogi was all right. Yogi wasn't hurt at all, but was happily sampling the treacle that had splashed on the road. "Try some, Boo Boo," he said. "The man's spilt quite a lot."

6. The friends decided to follow the trail of treacle blobs and try to find out where the lorry had gone. They took it in turns to keep a watch on the road behind them. "I don't want any more bumps like that last one," smiled Yogi. "So let's keep our eyes open, Boo Boo."

7. The trail of treacle stopped where the big lorry had, outside Ranger Smith's lodge. Boo Boo was so busy looking for treacle he walked right under the lorry. Yogi didn't stop either, until he bumped his head at the back. Just then, Ranger Smith and the driver came out.

8. Yogi explained he hadn't meant to frighten the driver. "You know I am such a friendly bear," he said. "I was only going to ask if I could sample some of his treacle." To show how friendly he was he offered to clear up the sticky mess at the back of the lorry.

9. Yogi and Boo soon cleared up all the treacle. As they licked it up Yogi told Boo Boo, "You stick with me and you'll get plenty of food." Boo Boo promised he would. "But next time you cross the road," he warned, "remember the Highway Code."

EXCITING TIMES WITH QUICK DRAW MCGRAW HOOFPRIINTS

1. Quick Draw was on the trail of a bandit who had stolen a horse and left town. Baba Looey was with him. Quick Draw told Baba that by watching him work he might learn to catch bandits himself one day.

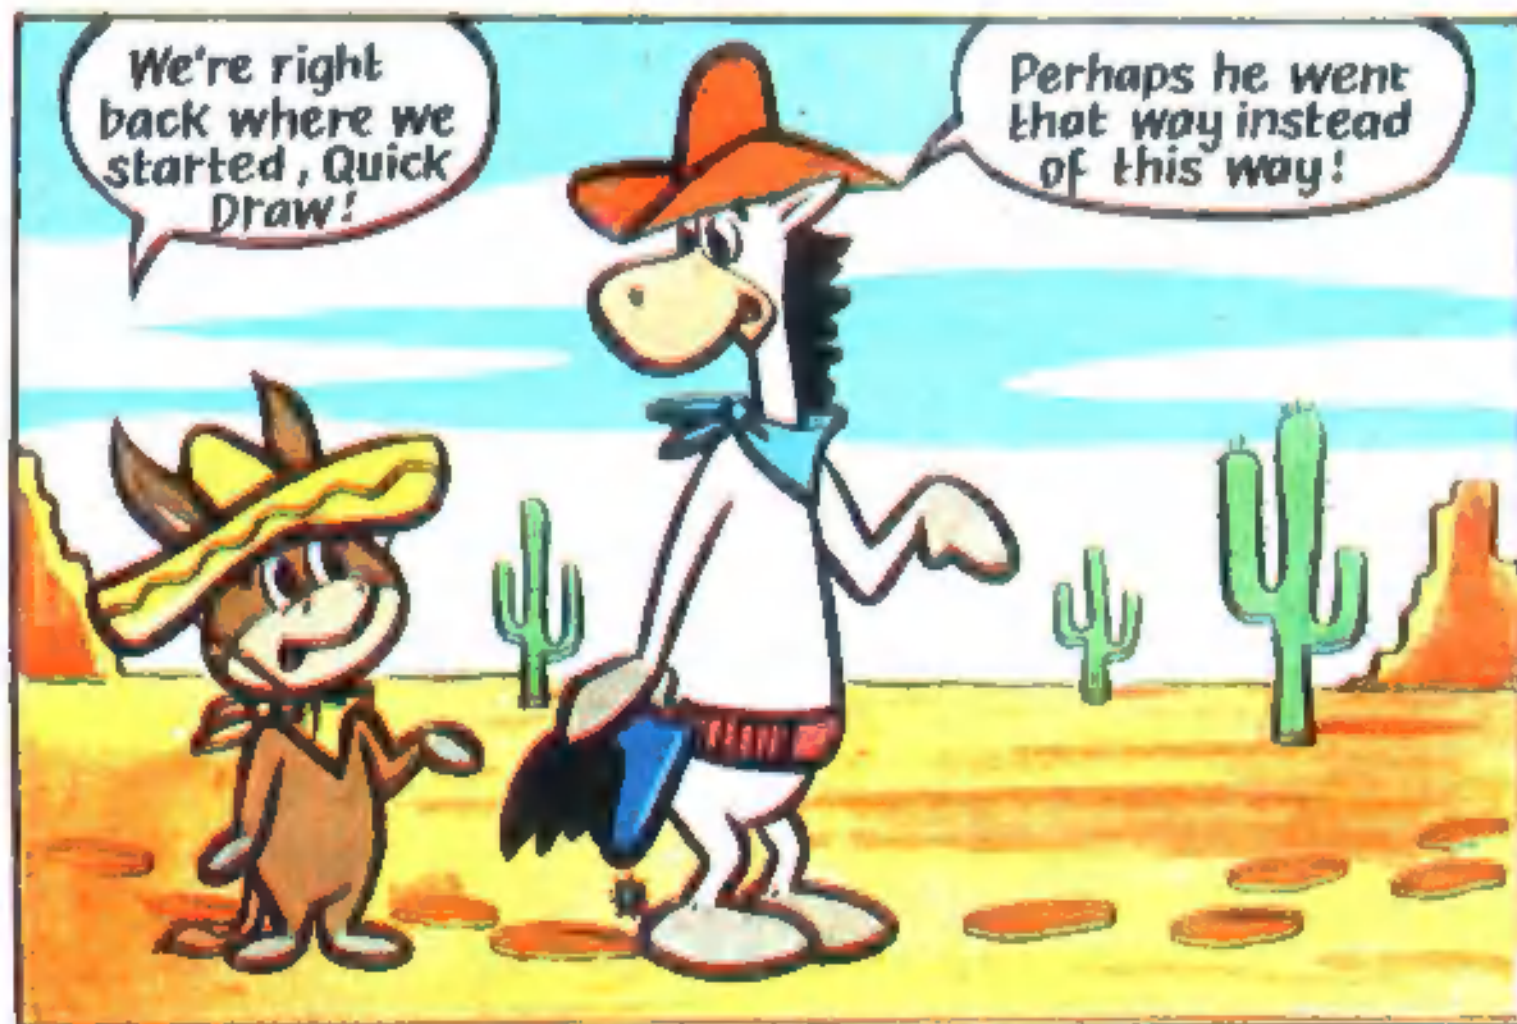

2. All the time they walked along Quick Draw was looking on the ground. Suddenly he saw a long line of hoofprints stretching into the desert. Having found them, Baba Looey wanted to go home, but no!

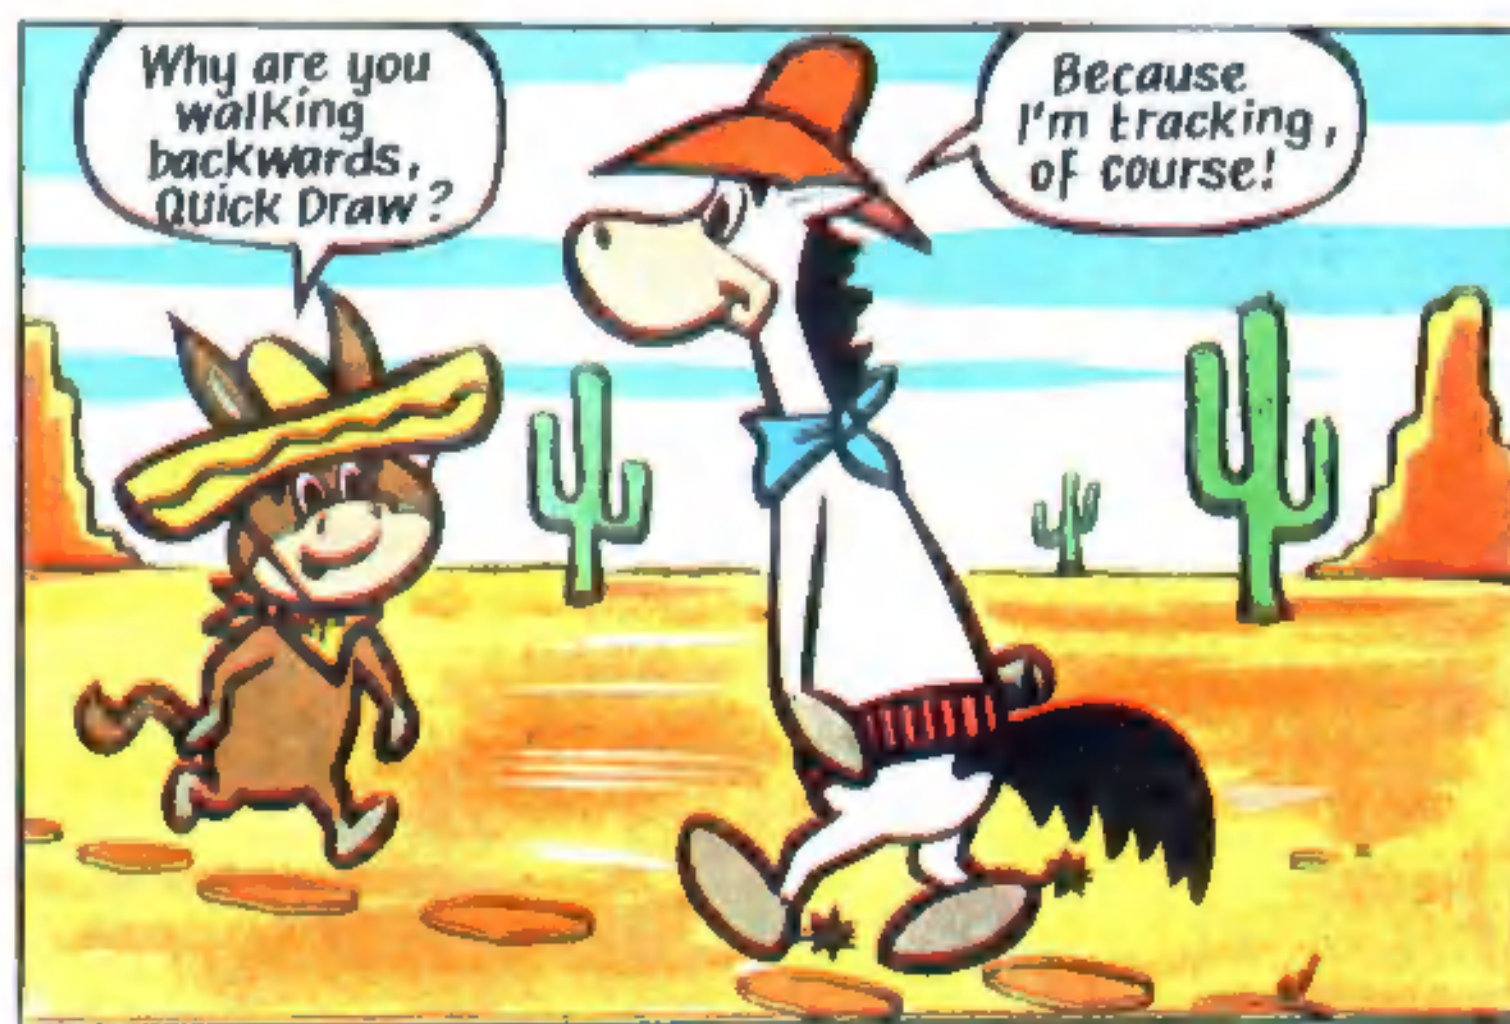

3. The hoofprints went right across the desert and up into the hills. Quick Draw and Baba Looey followed them. "When are we going home?" Baba groaned. Quick Draw told him to hush. They might find a clue behind the big rock.

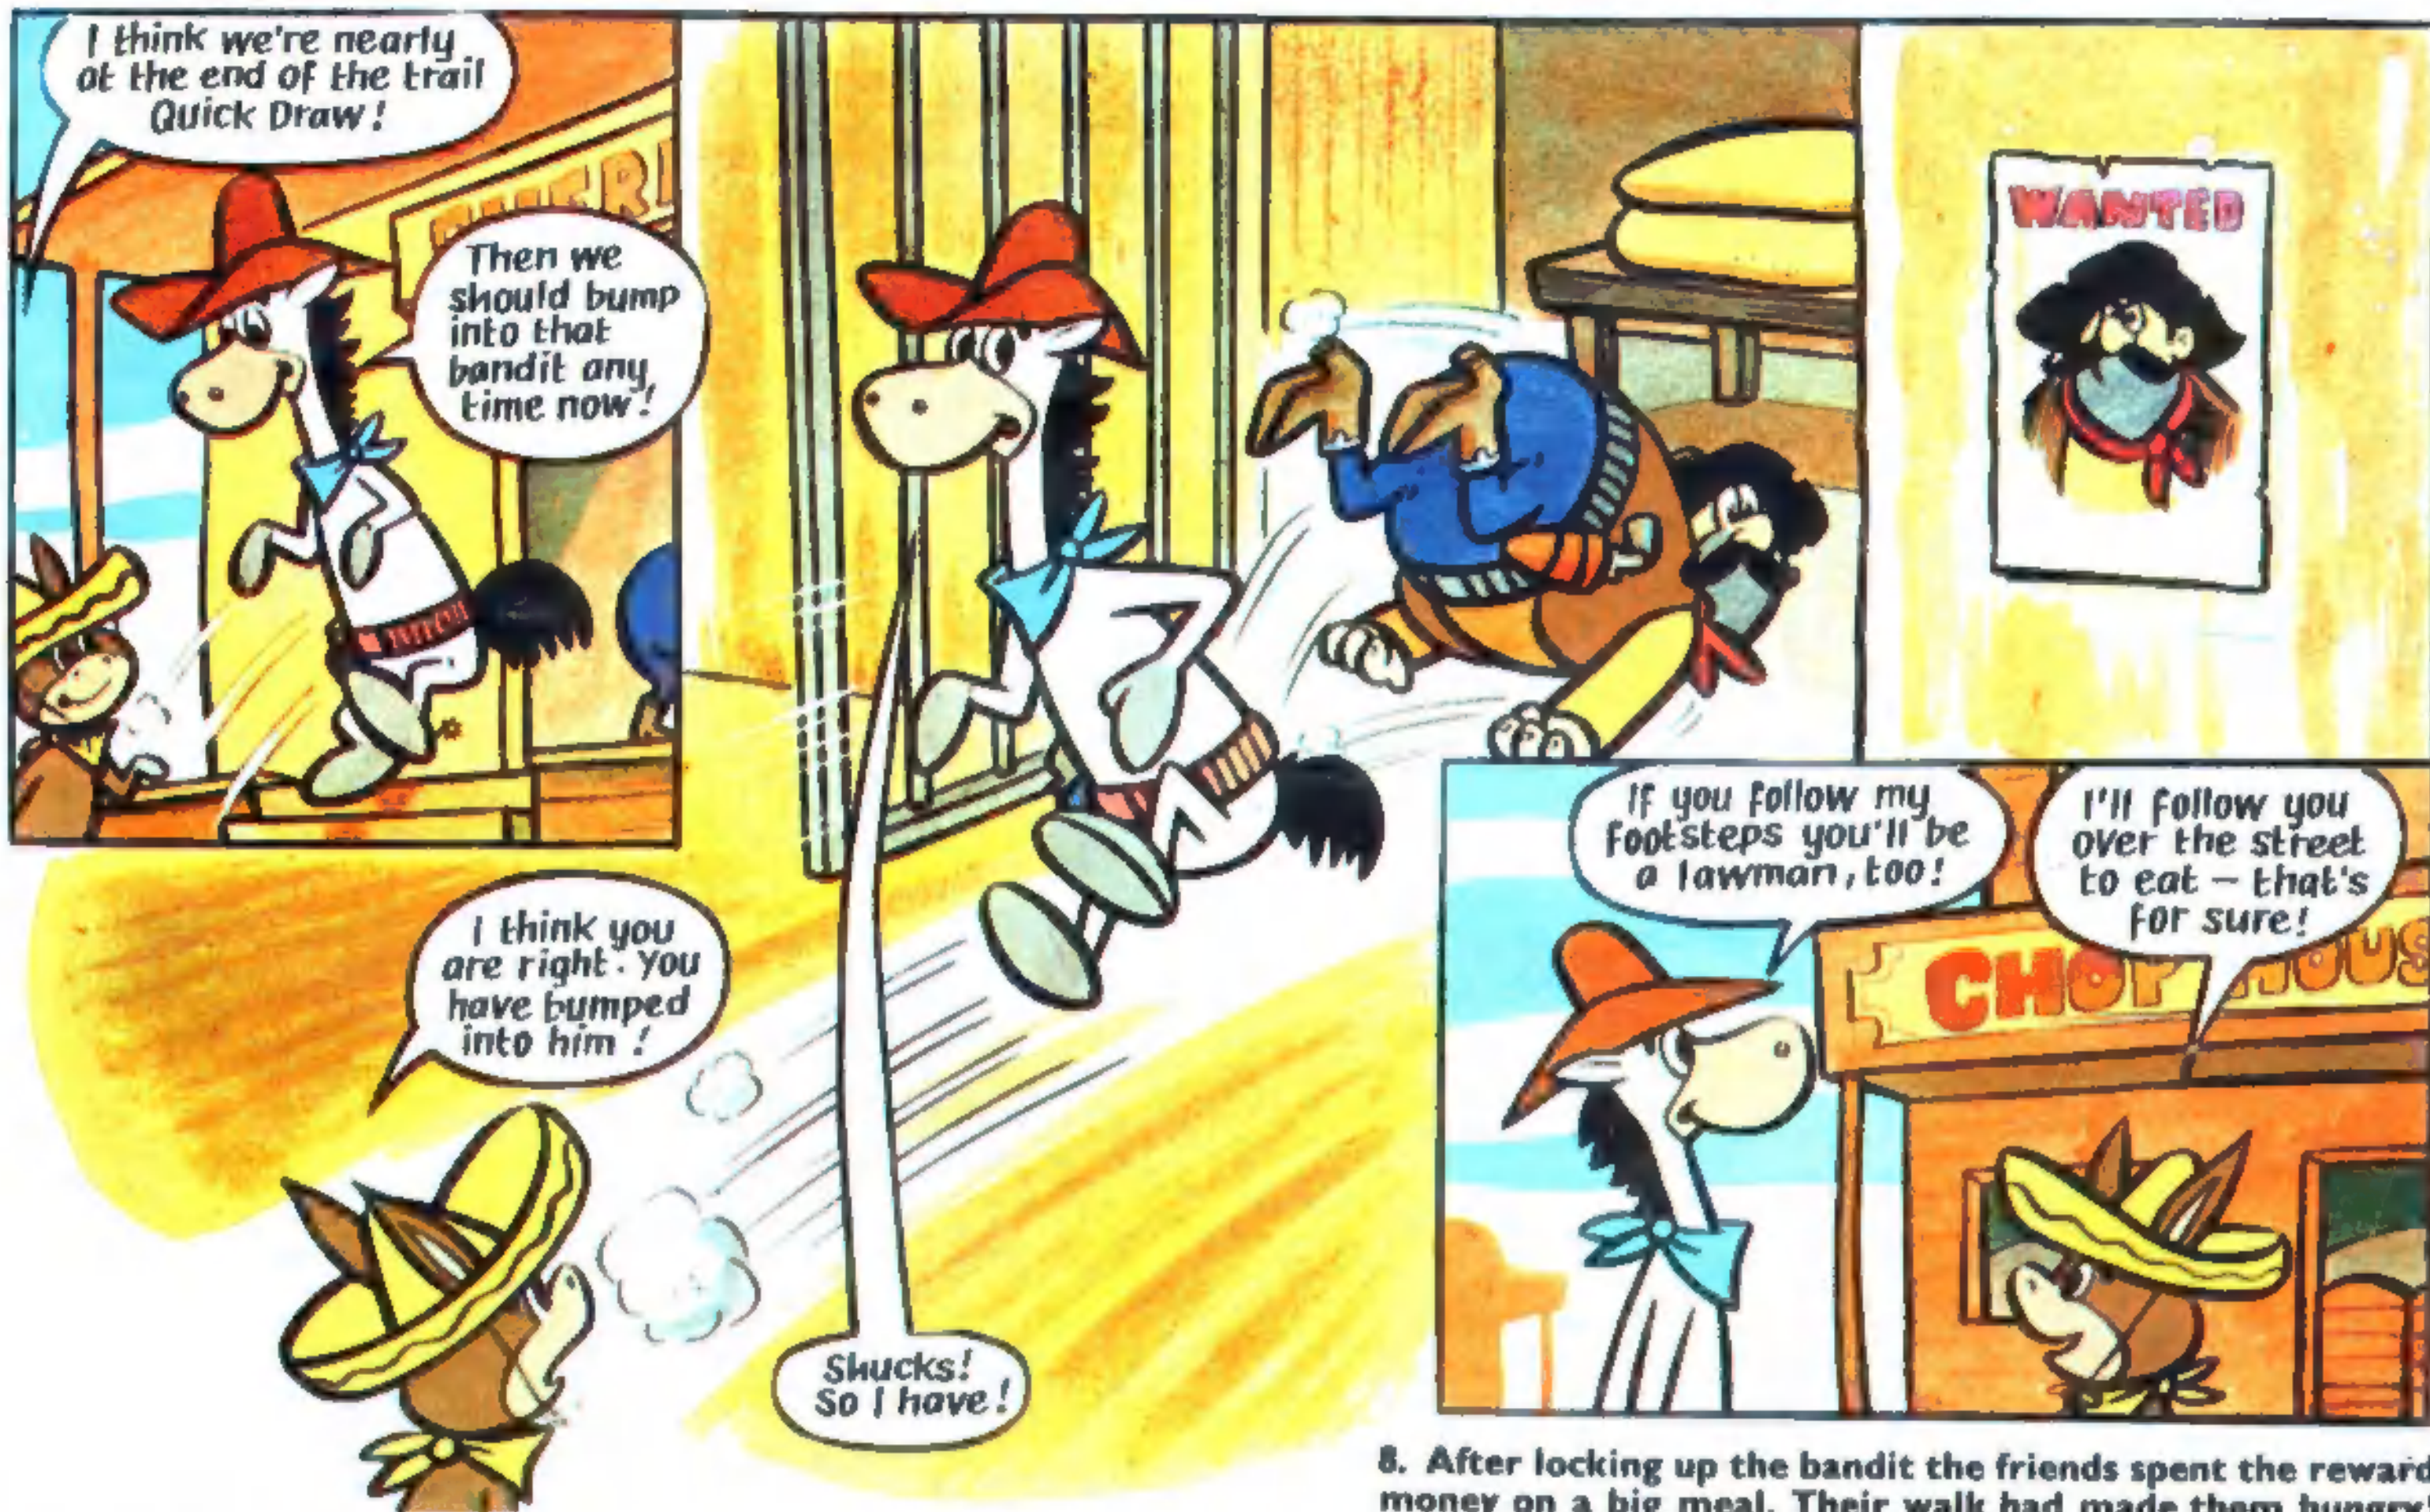

4. Quick Draw was right. The clue behind the rock was another set of hoofprints going the other way! "Here we go again," sighed Baba Looey, as he followed Quick Draw back along the trail.

5. Down from the hills and back across the desert went the hoofprints. And so did Quick Draw and Baba Looey. Then the trail suddenly stopped where they first found it. "I give up!" Baba Looey sighed.

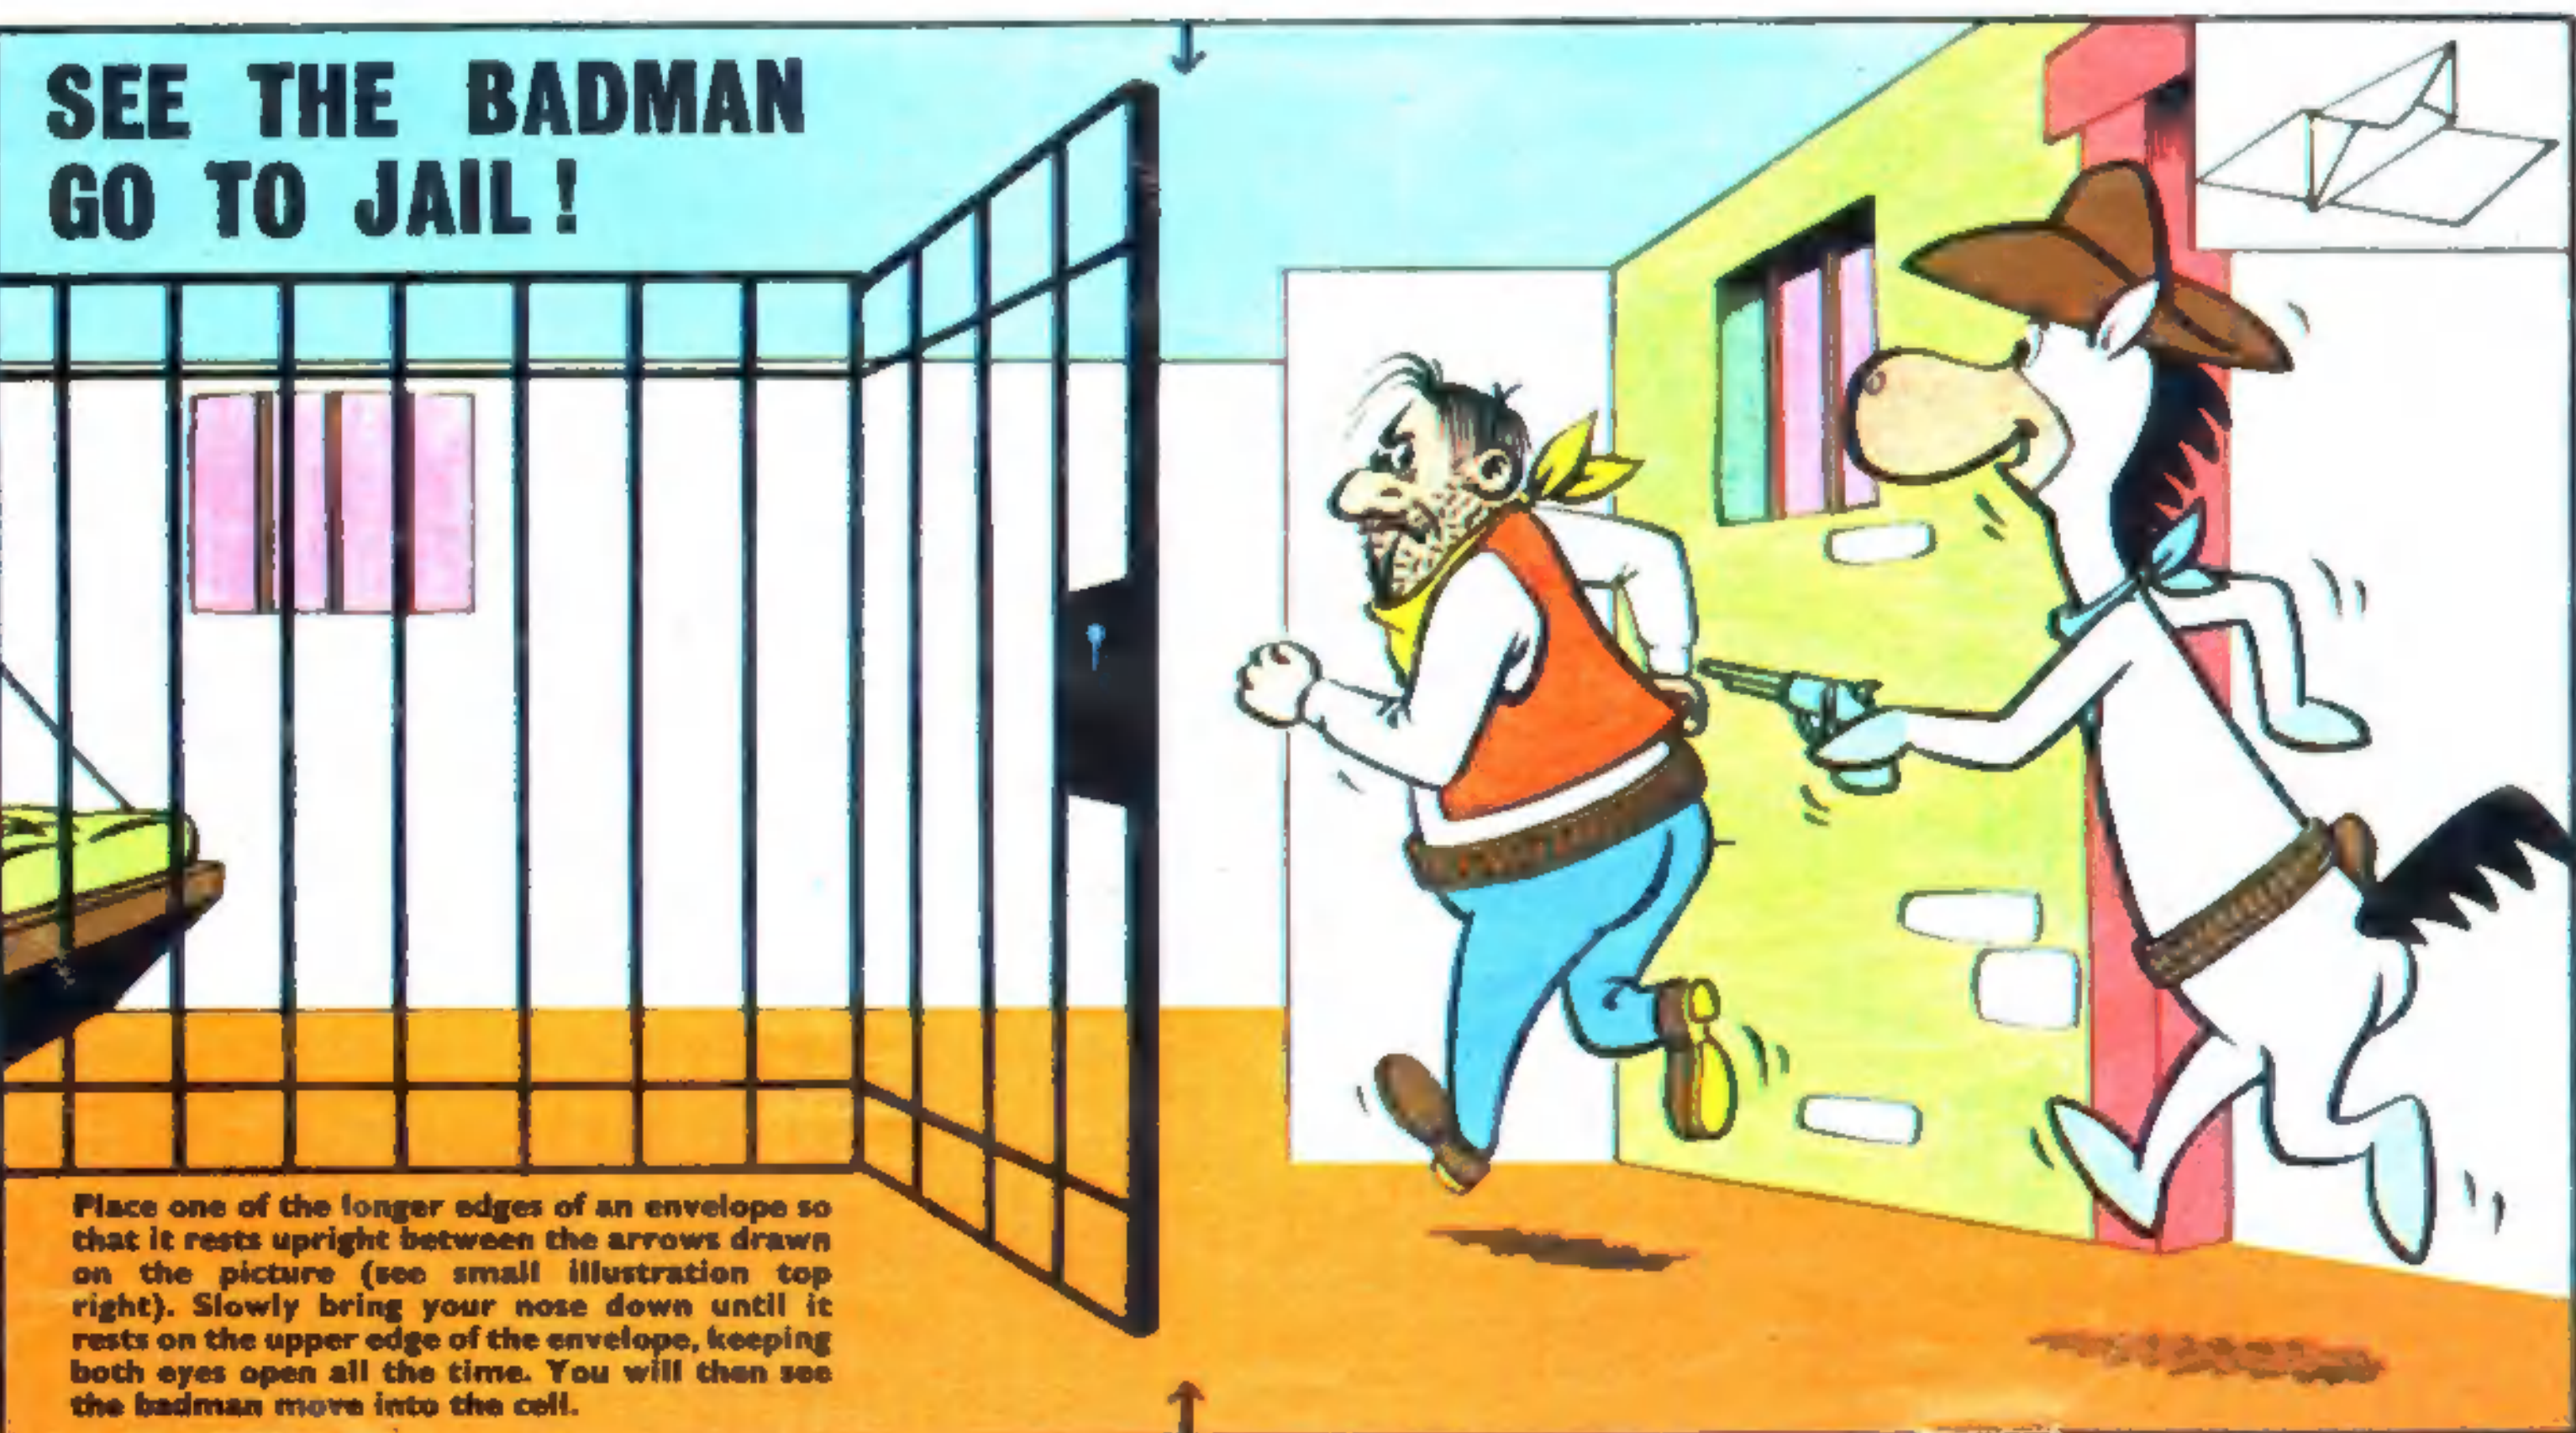

6. Quick Draw started walking backwards the other way. "That bandit must be smart," he thought. "He's walking his horse backwards just to fool us by pretending he's gone the other way. But he'll find out I'm just as smart!"

7. When they arrived back at the office Quick Draw bumped into the bandit! He had sneaked back when Quick Draw left.

8. After locking up the bandit the friends spent the reward money on a big meal. Their walk had made them hungry!

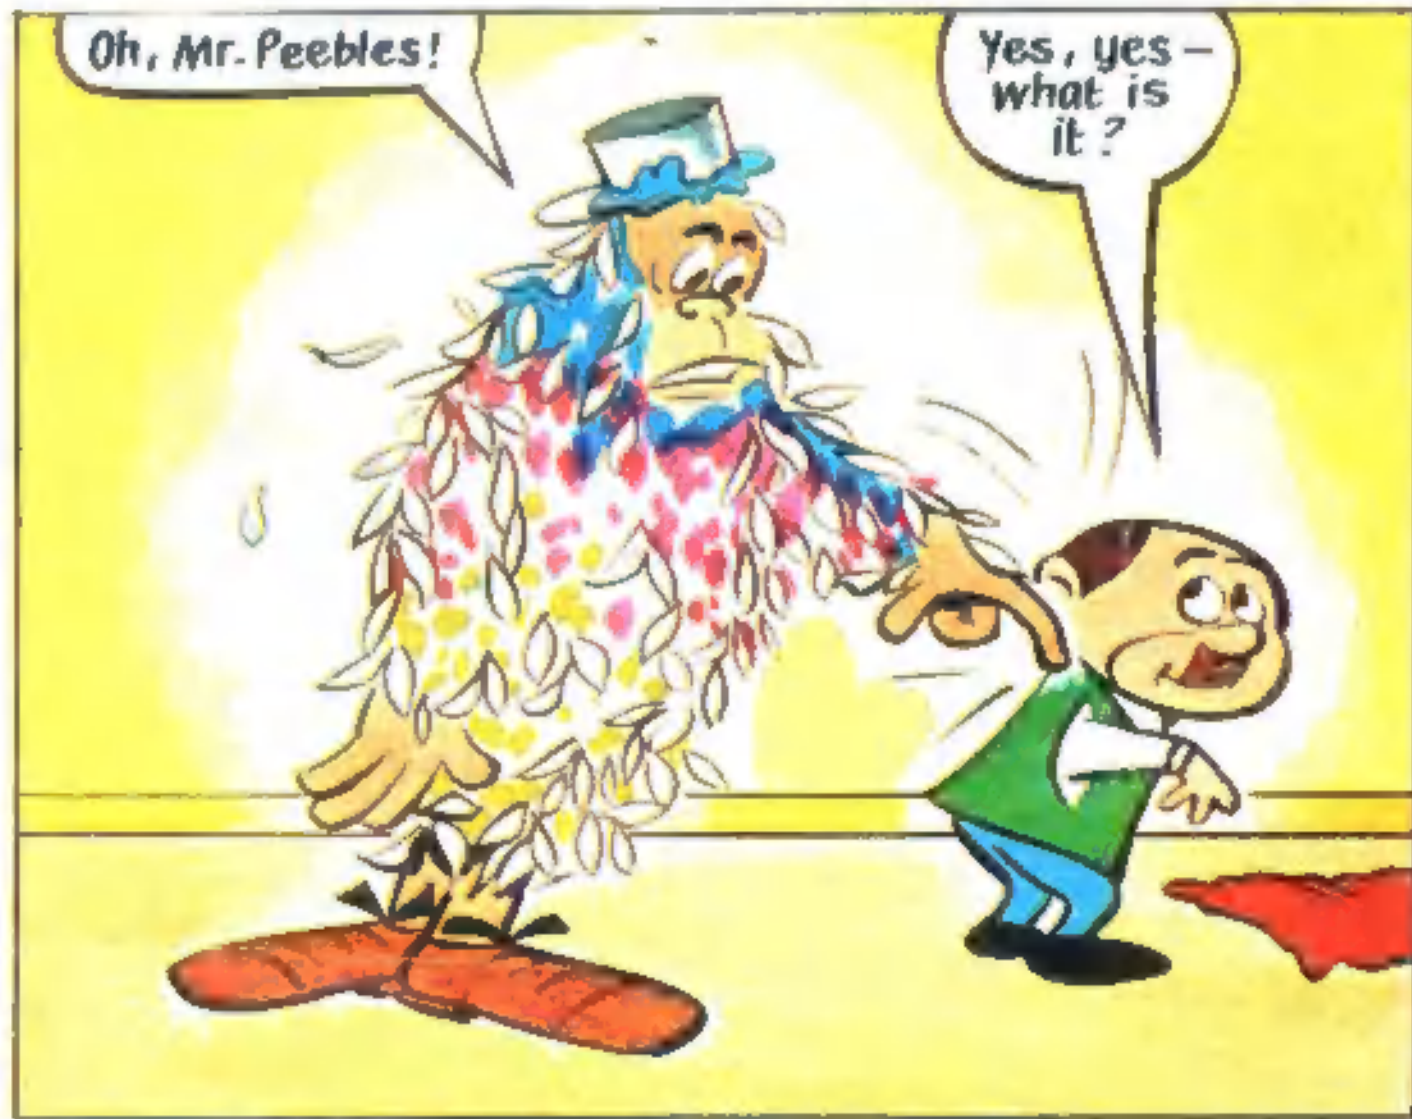

SEE THE BADMAN GO TO JAIL!

Place one of the longer edges of an envelope so that it rests upright between the arrows drawn on the picture (see small illustration top right). Slowly bring your nose down until it rests on the upper edge of the envelope, keeping both eyes open all the time. You will then see the badman move into the cell.

ADVENTURES OF MAGILLA GORILLA

MORE FUN AND GAMES WITH MAGILLA GORILLA IN YOGI NEXT WEEK!

FREE

NEXT WEEK in Yogi AND HIS TOY

Yogi's MAGIC

GOLDEN PAPER

When you get next week's terrific free gift from Yogi, you will be the envy of all your friends.

Yogi is giving you a sheet of his magic paper so that you can write in gold.

Just imagine how your name will look in Golden lettering. On your books, on the door of your own bedroom, on your leather satchel and on all the other things where you want to show your name in gold or make a golden pattern. The magic golden paper is simple to use and Yogi will be giving full instructions. You will be delighted with your unusual and useful free gift.

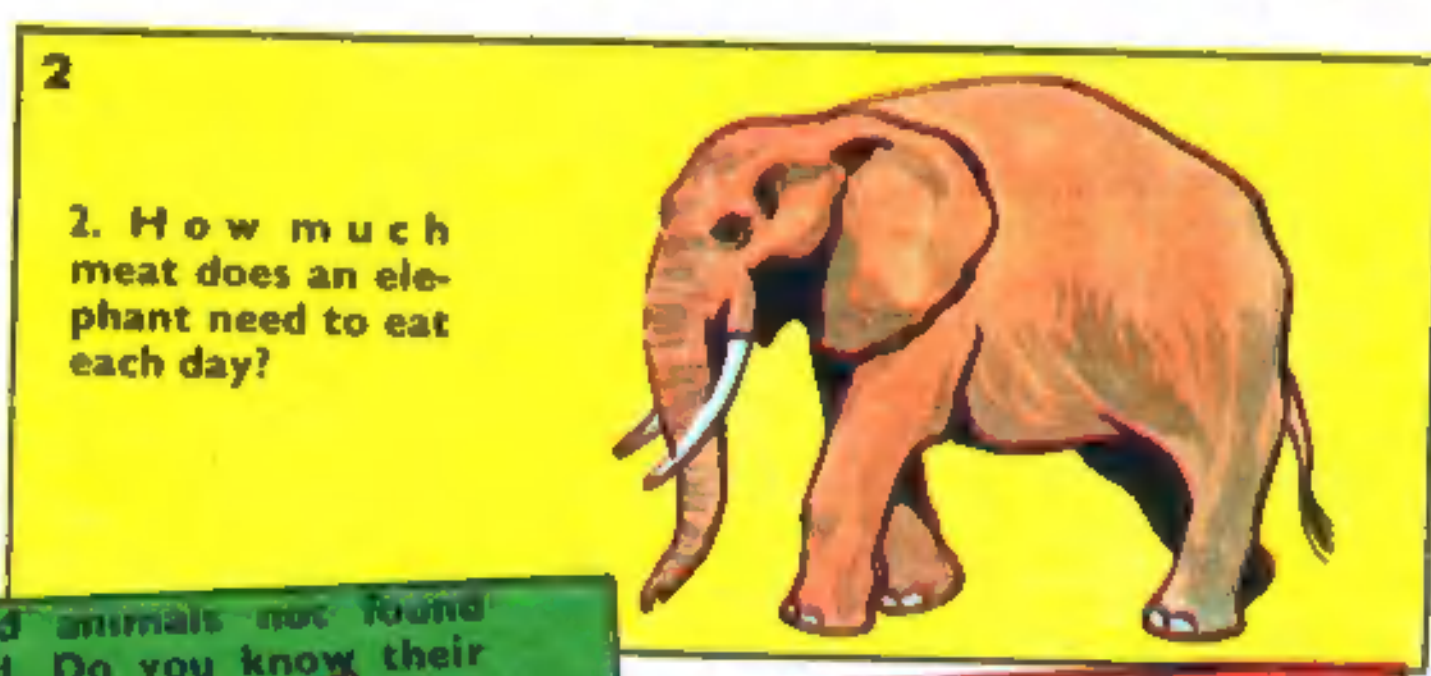

DON'T MISS YOUR COPY—ORDER YOGI and his TOY— NOW

Yogi's ANIMAL QUIZ

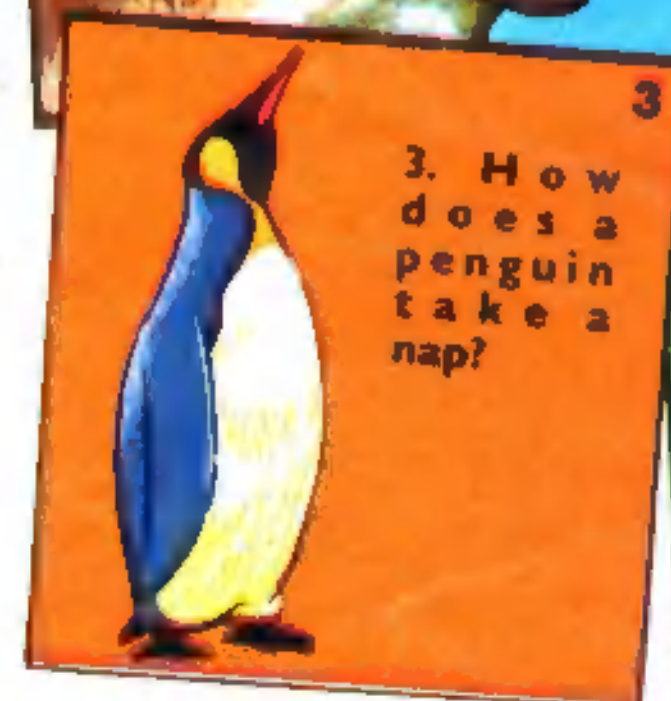

Here is a quiz on animals. If you don't know the answers you will find them printed upside down at the bottom of the page.

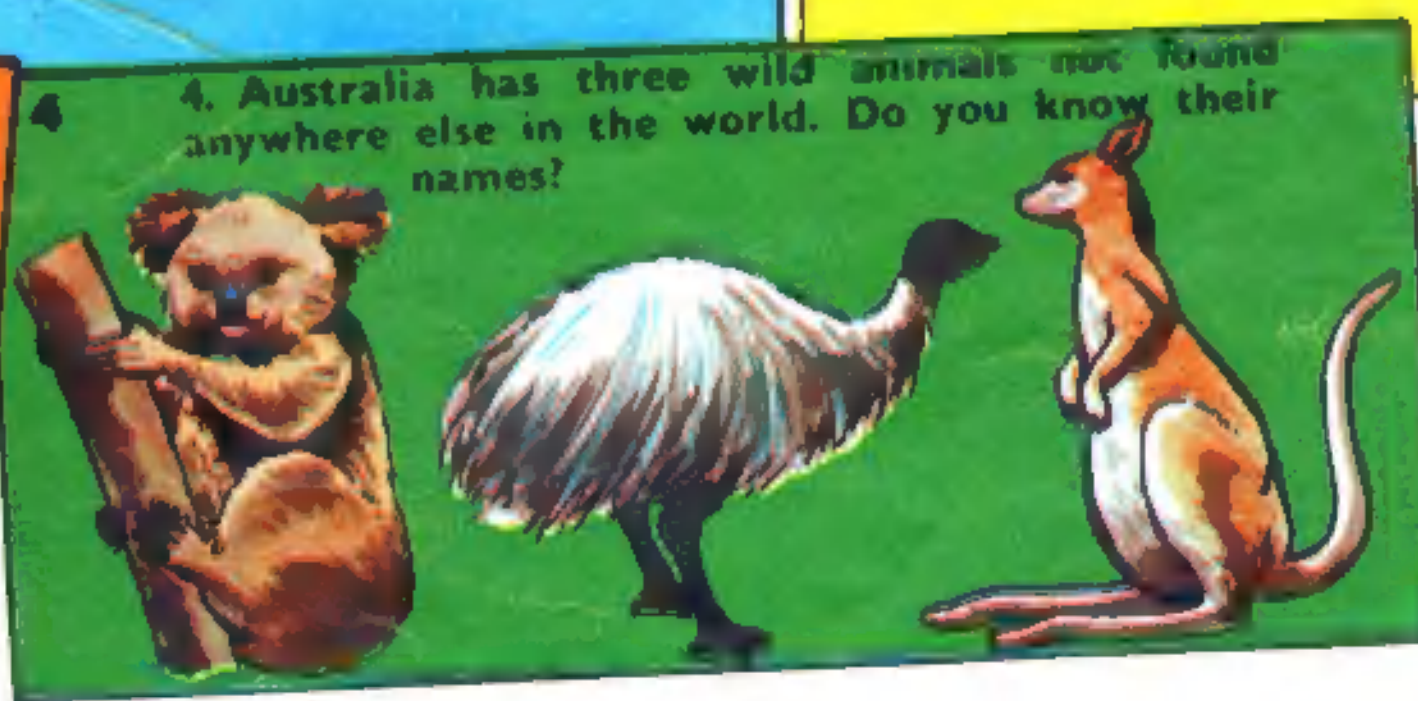

1. Do you know why cats can see much better in darkness than humans?

2. How much meat does an elephant need to eat each day?

3. How does a penguin take a nap?

4. Australia has three wild animals not found anywhere else in the world. Do you know their names?

5. At what speed can an ostrich run?

1. A cat's eyes can pick up tiny amounts of light which human eyes cannot. 2. None. Elephants are vegetarian. 3. Standing up. 4. The emu, the Koala bear and the kangaroo. 5. Nearly 40 miles an hour.

ANSWERS

LEARN WITH YOGI

Some interesting facts about GORILLAS!

DON'T YOU think your bouncy balloon toy is just like our dear old friend, Magilla? He is very willing and tries to do his best, yet always seems to do the wrong thing! Yet next week he bounces up again, just like your toy, as cheerful as ever and ready for another adventure!

Of course, you all know that Magilla is just a comic gorilla, and real ones are quite different. They live in tropical forests in Central Africa. Although they can climb trees they spend more of their time on the ground than the other big apes do. They walk on their hind legs and generally rest the knuckles of their hands on the ground. Sometimes they stand upright. An angry gorilla will stand erect, show his teeth and growl, and bang on his chest with his fists!

Although they are so big, much larger than a man, gorillas are not fierce animals and, when living in the forest, only want to be left in peace with their troop or family. They usually wander about, either in a family party or in a larger group of twenty or thirty animals.

Gorillas sleep in nests made of twigs and branches in trees or bushes and like to make a new nest every night. Fruit is their favourite food, particularly bananas, sweet-corn and sugar-cane. The younger ones will also eat insects and bird's eggs. They do not have hair on their faces, but their bodies are covered with black hair when they are young; this gradually turns grey when they get old, as our hair does.

Mother gorillas cuddle their babies in their arms, just like human beings, though later on they may treat their young ones more roughly. But young gorillas grow strong more quickly than human babies do, and are very playful. When they live in zoos they become fond of their keepers and love to play with them.

One famous American gorilla, Bushman, became a good footballer. However, he was so strong he kept bursting the footballs and had to go in for less expensive games!

When they are living in the forest, young gorillas stay with their family until they are about fourteen years old. They are some of the most intelligent of animals, but even so, a real one would find it difficult to do all the clever tricks that Magilla gets up to. People who are studying them are still finding out more about their habits and how clever they are. Unfortunately, they are part of the world's wild life that is in danger of disappearing altogether.

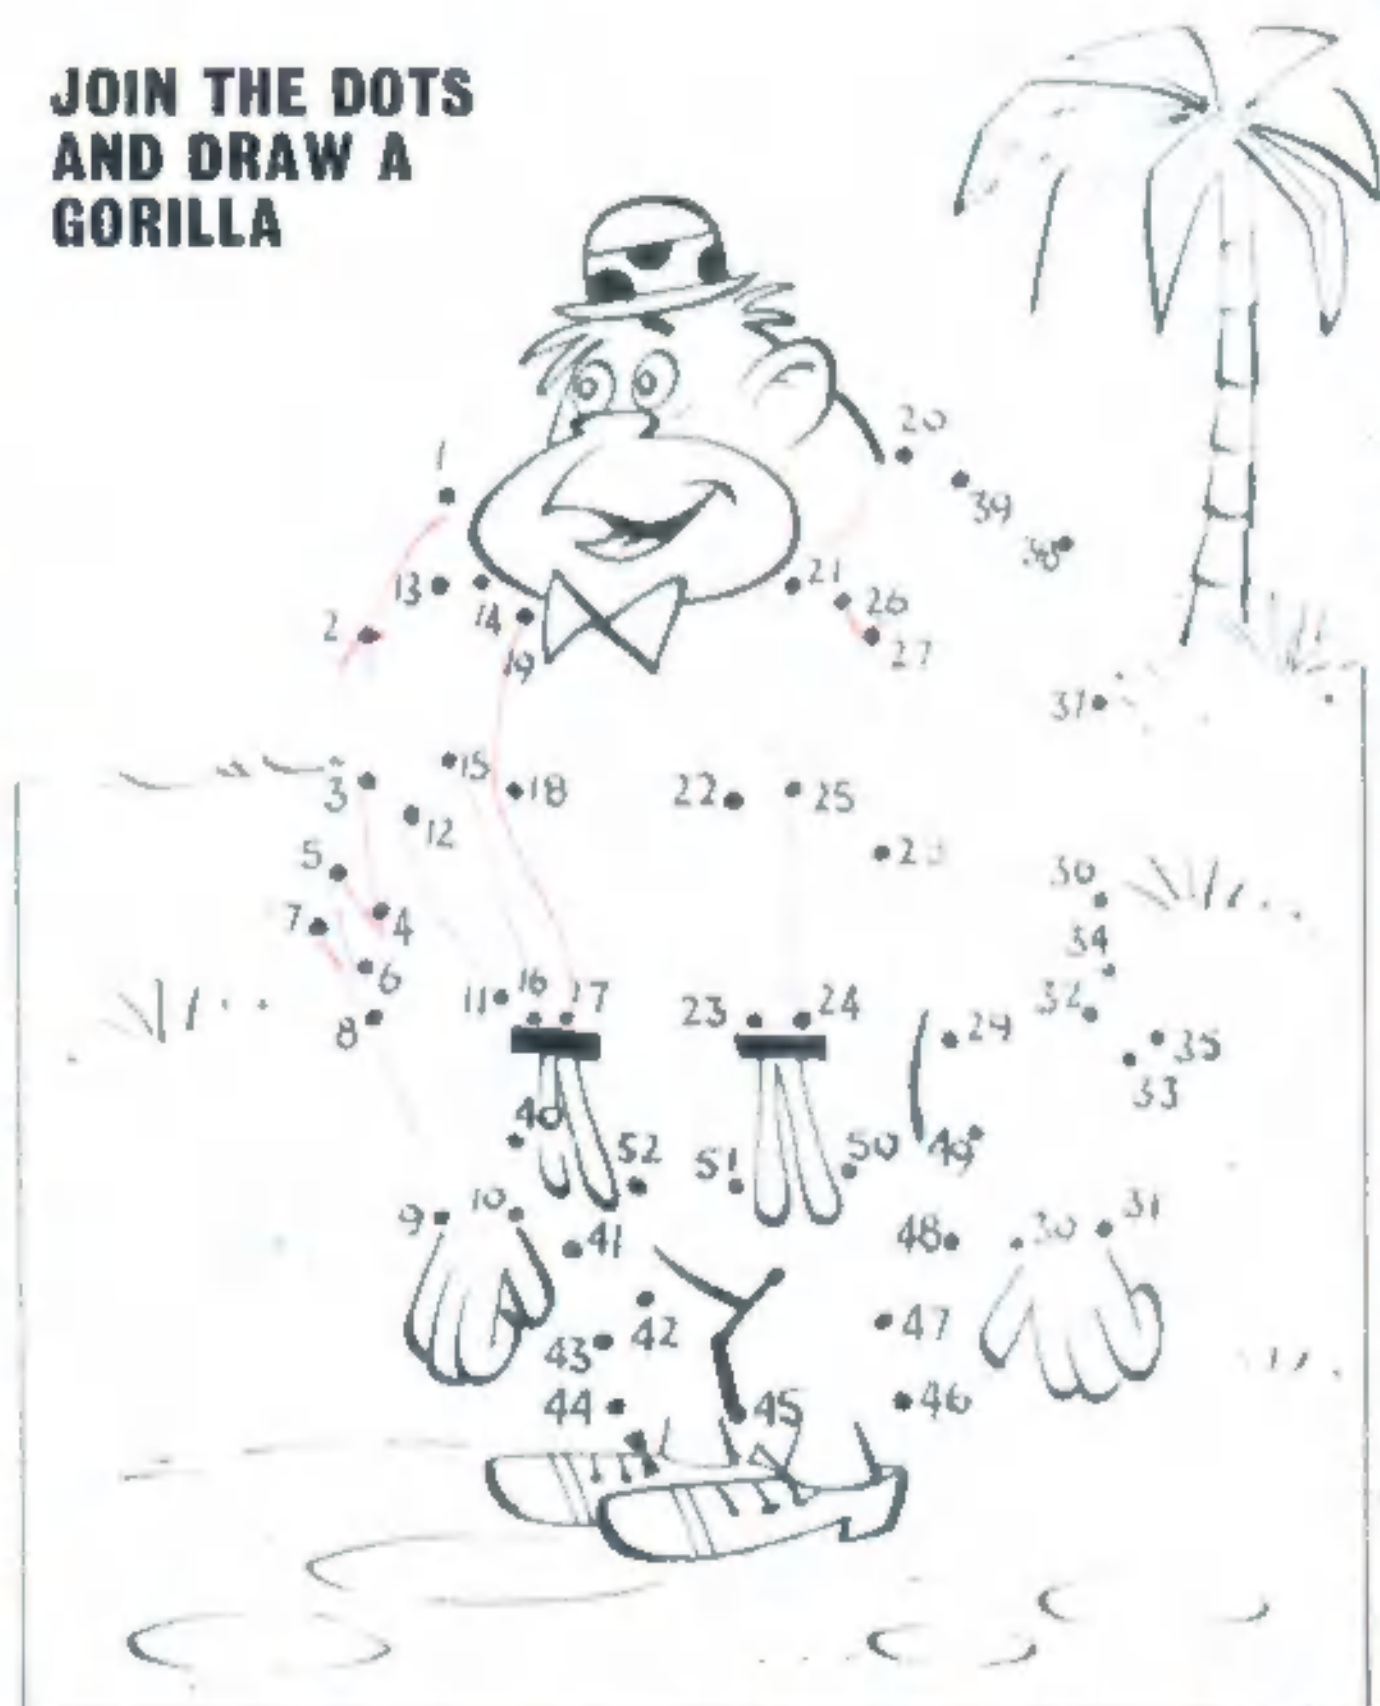

There are, however, people looking ahead and trying to make sure gorillas are left somewhere to live and that not too many are captured for zoos. The world would be a much duller place if there were only people in it and all the birds and animals were gone.

A gorilla mother comforts her baby in her arms, just like a human mother.
(Below) Here are a male and a female gorilla. They usually travel about in a family party.

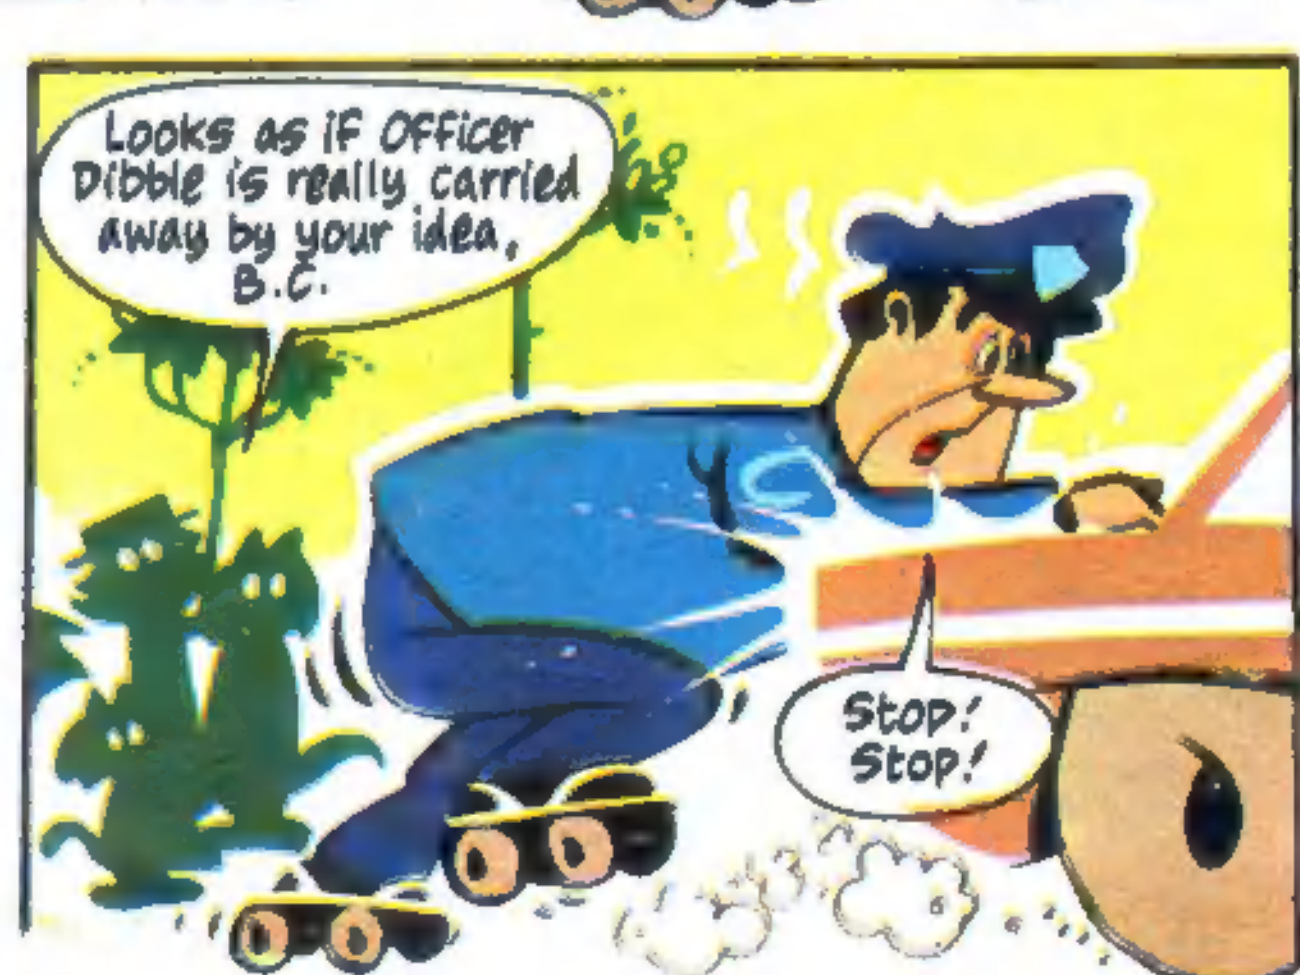

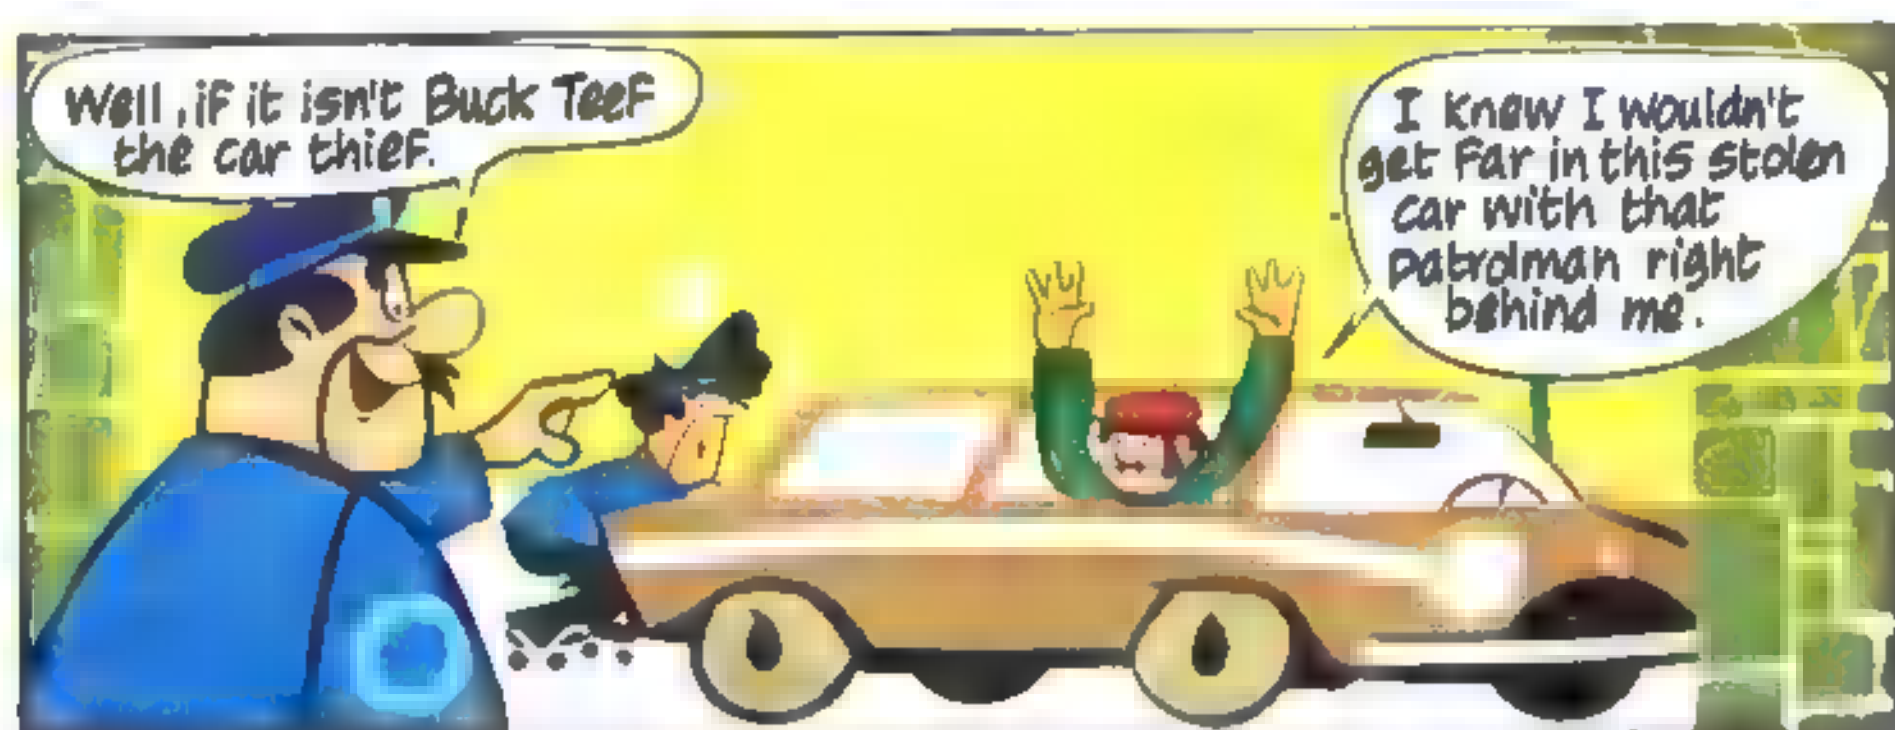

JOIN THE DOTS AND DRAW A GORILLA

BOSS CAT

THE SPEED COP

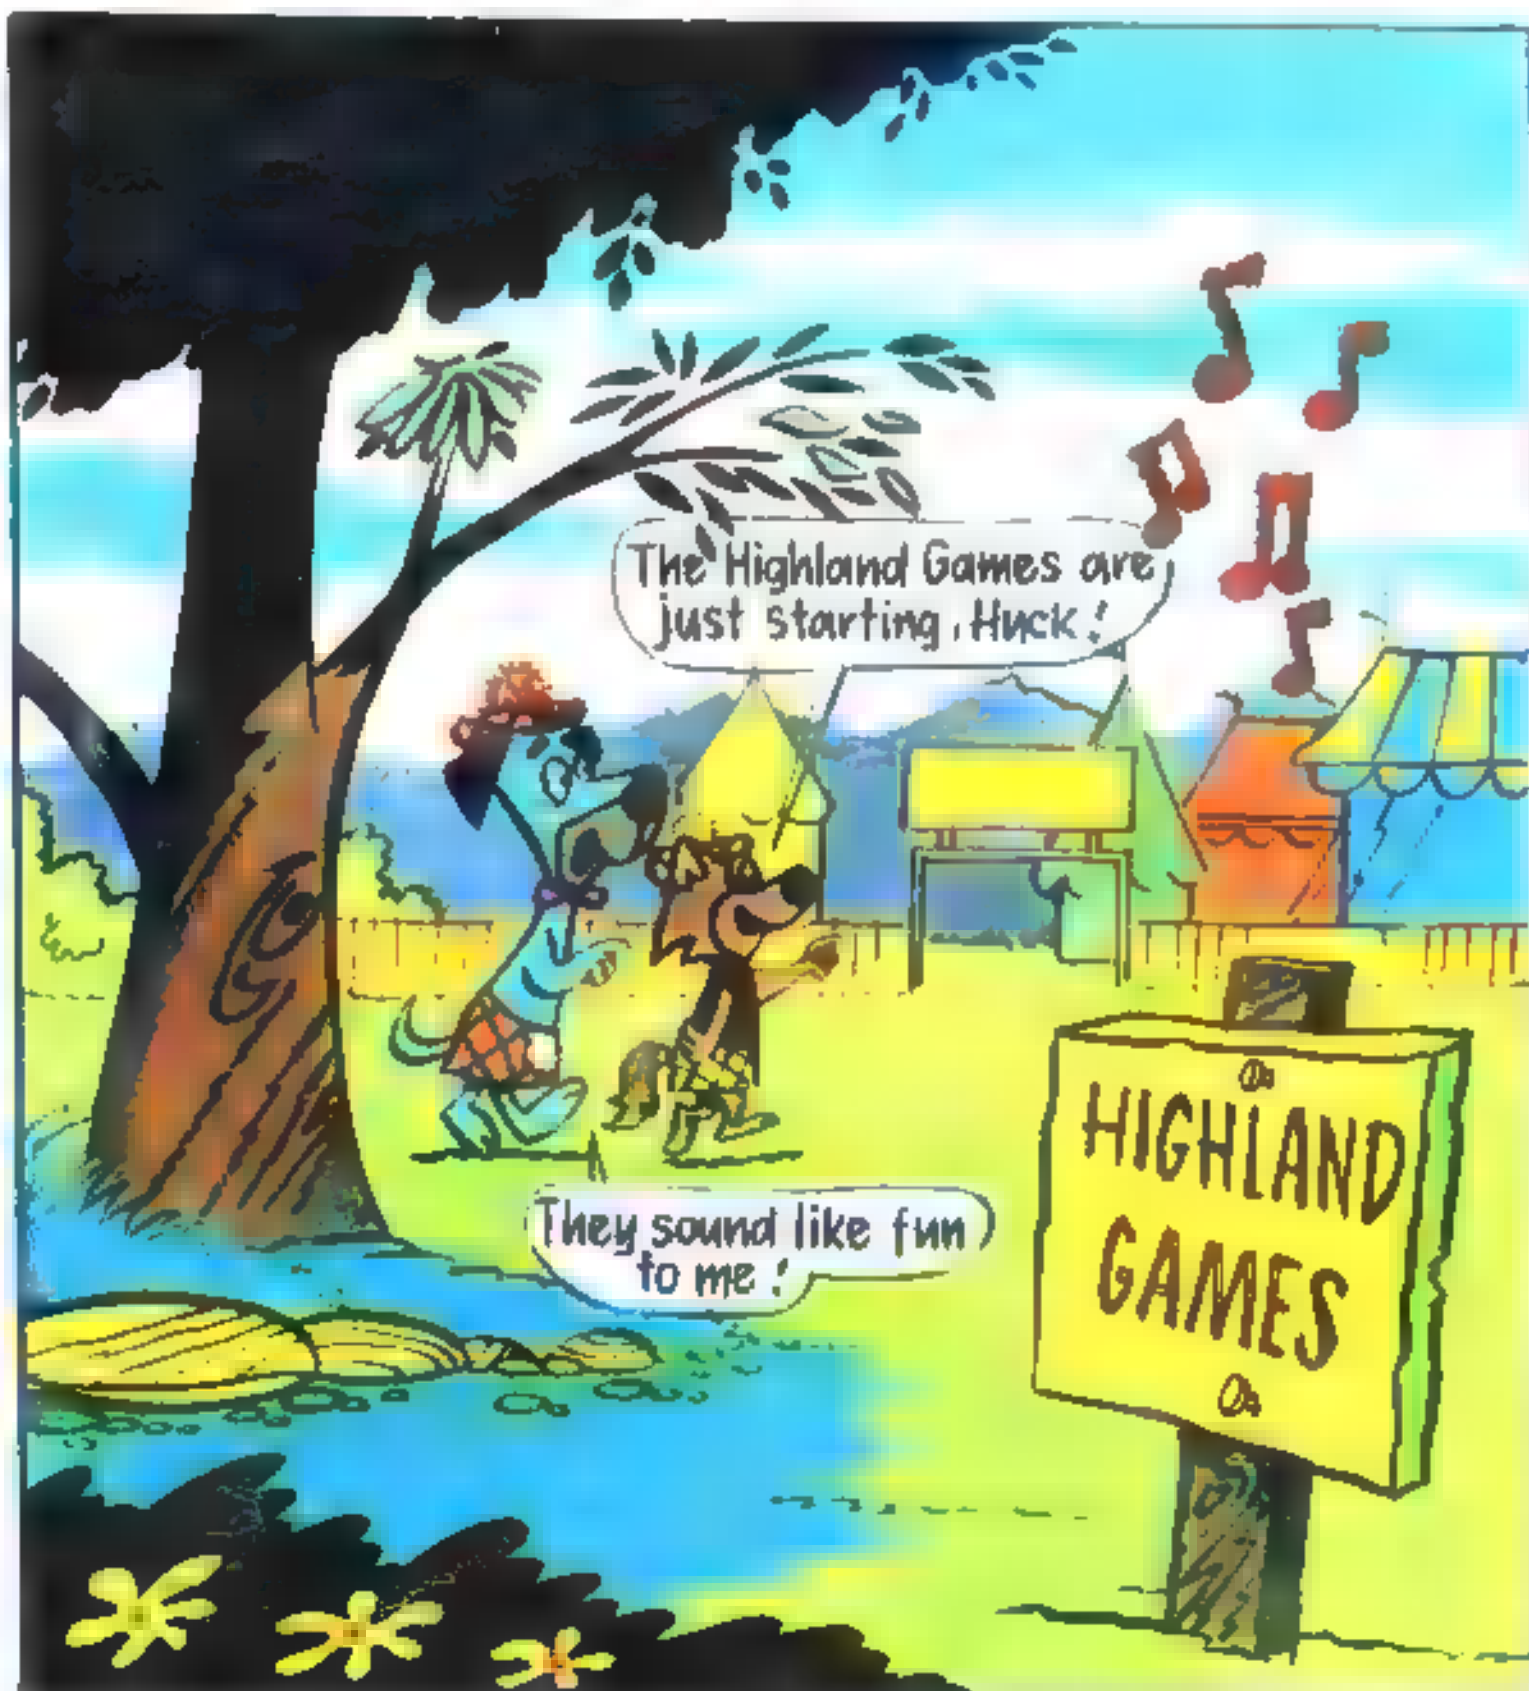

GIVE FRED A HELPING HAND

This week Fred Flintstone has been trying his hand at painting a picture but he couldn't finish it because he had no blue paint. All the white spaces in the picture should be blue. So, if you would like to help Fred, get out your blue paints or crayons and finish off all the blue colours for him.

THE HAPPY DAYS OF HUCKLEBERRY HOUND

1. Huck is enjoying himself in Scotland after winning a ticket in a TV contest to travel anywhere in the world. He is staying with Mac Ding-a-ling, a cousin of his friend Ding-a-ling. Huck promised he'd wait to see the Highland Games before travelling on.

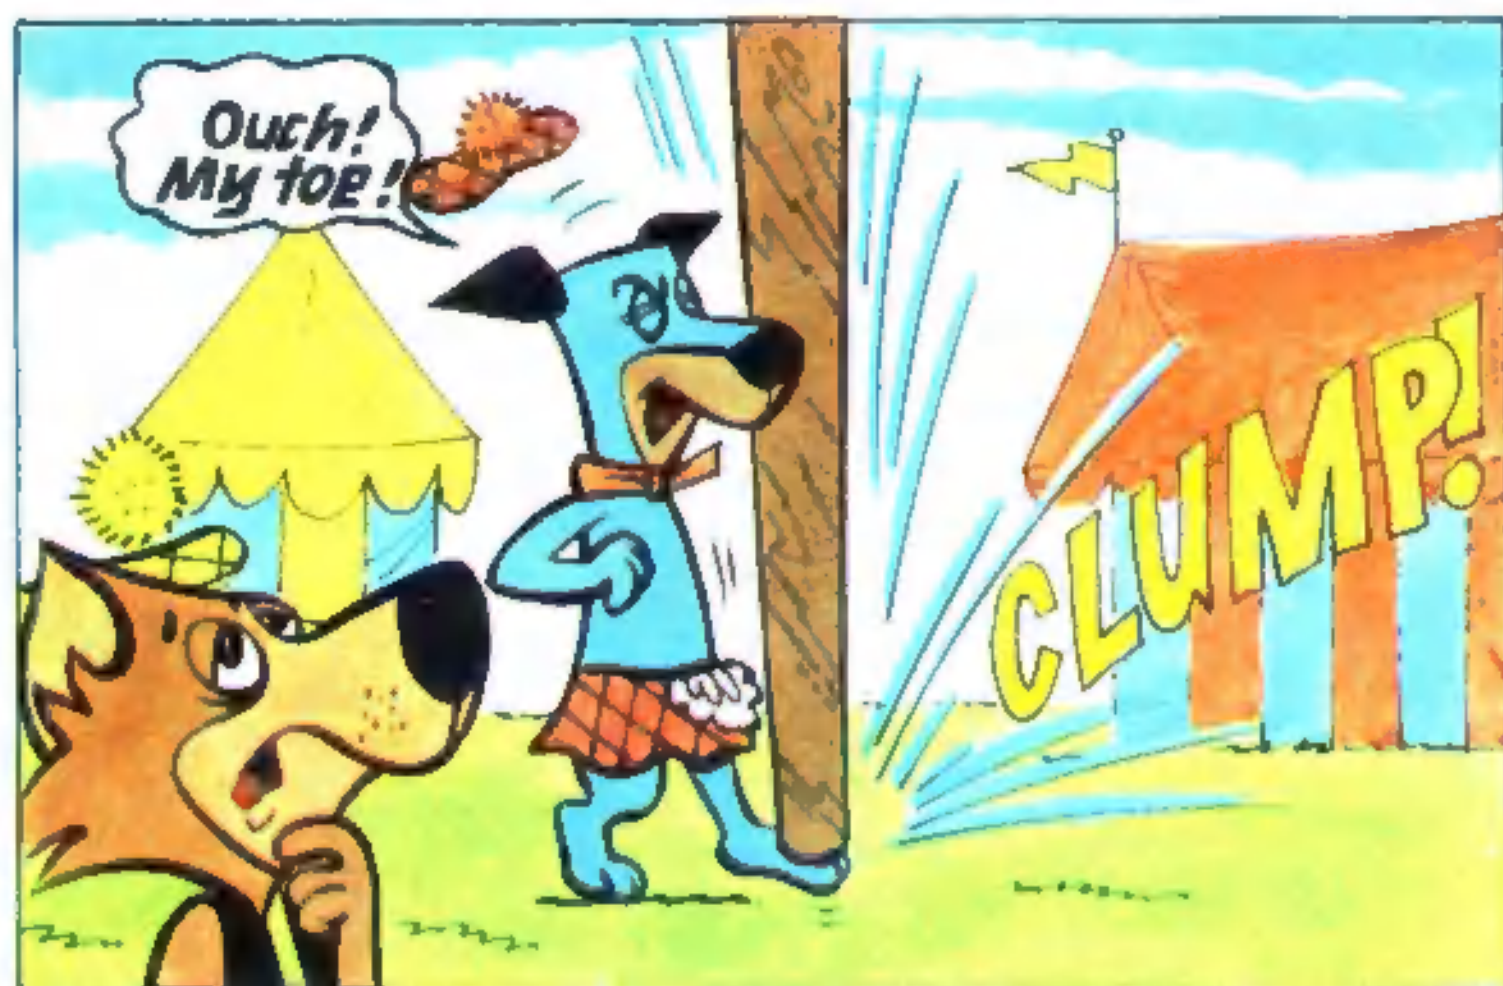

2. The Games had started when they arrived, and there was lots to see. People were throwing things about and some were playing the bagpipes and dancing. "Why is Wee McGregor throwing a telegraph pole?" Huck asked. "It's not a pole! He's tossing the caber," he was told.

3. Having thrown the hammer last week, Huck thought he'd try his luck with tossing the caber. A caber is like the trunk of a tree and is very big and heavy. You have to be strong to toss it. "But if Wee McGregor can do it, so can I," Huck told himself hopefully.

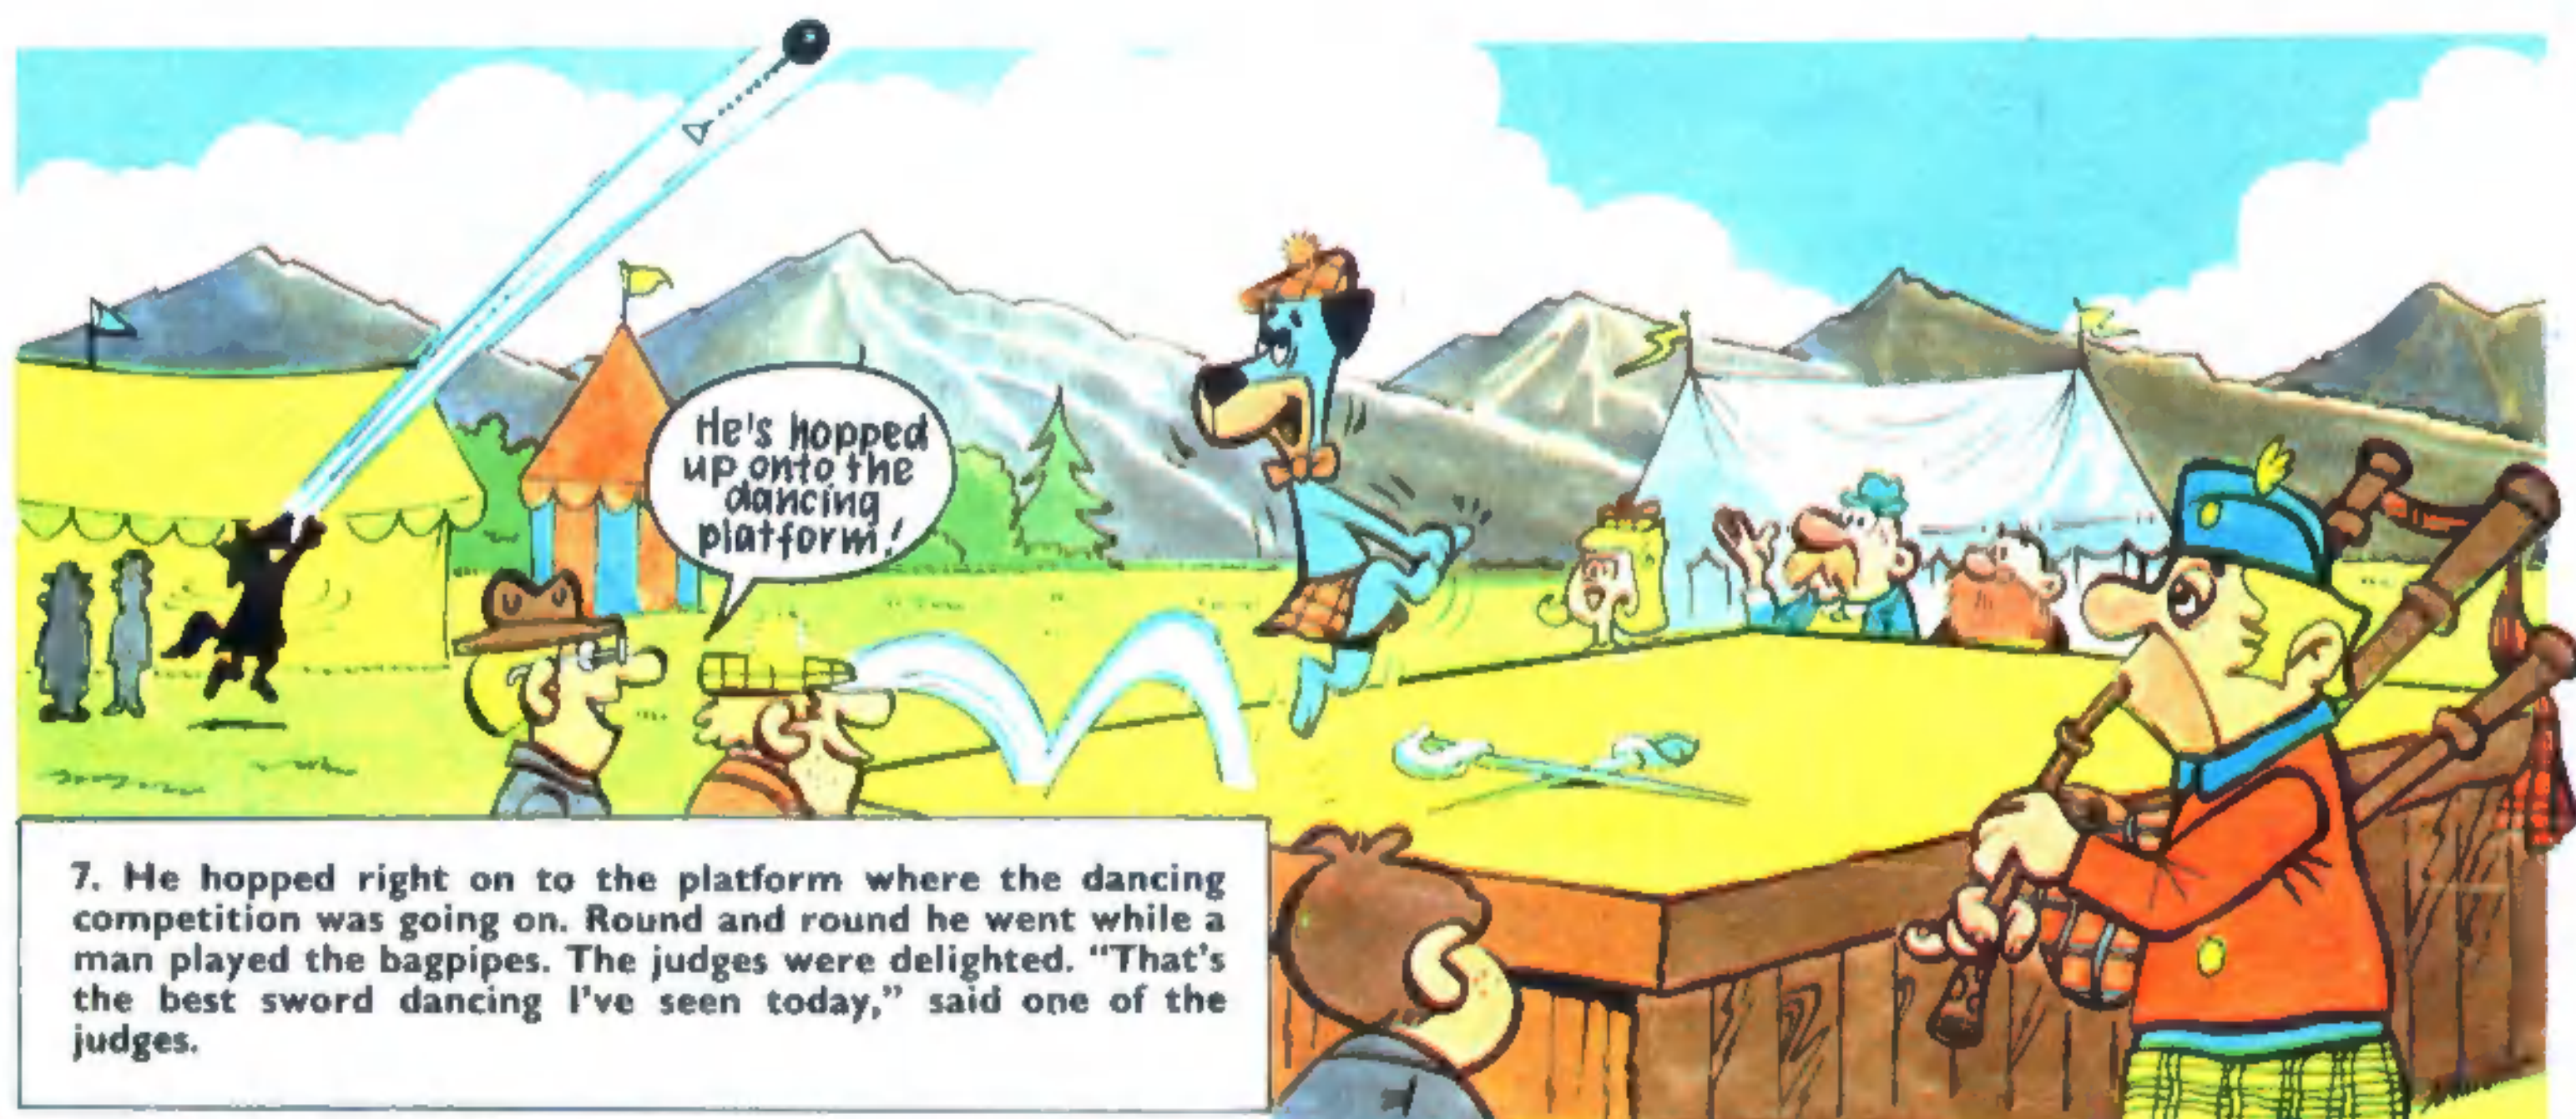

4. The caber was terribly heavy when Huck tried to lift it. "I hope I don't drop it," he said to himself. "I wouldn't like it to fall on the tent where they're having tea." Everybody was watching him stagger about. "Stand well back!" he cried.

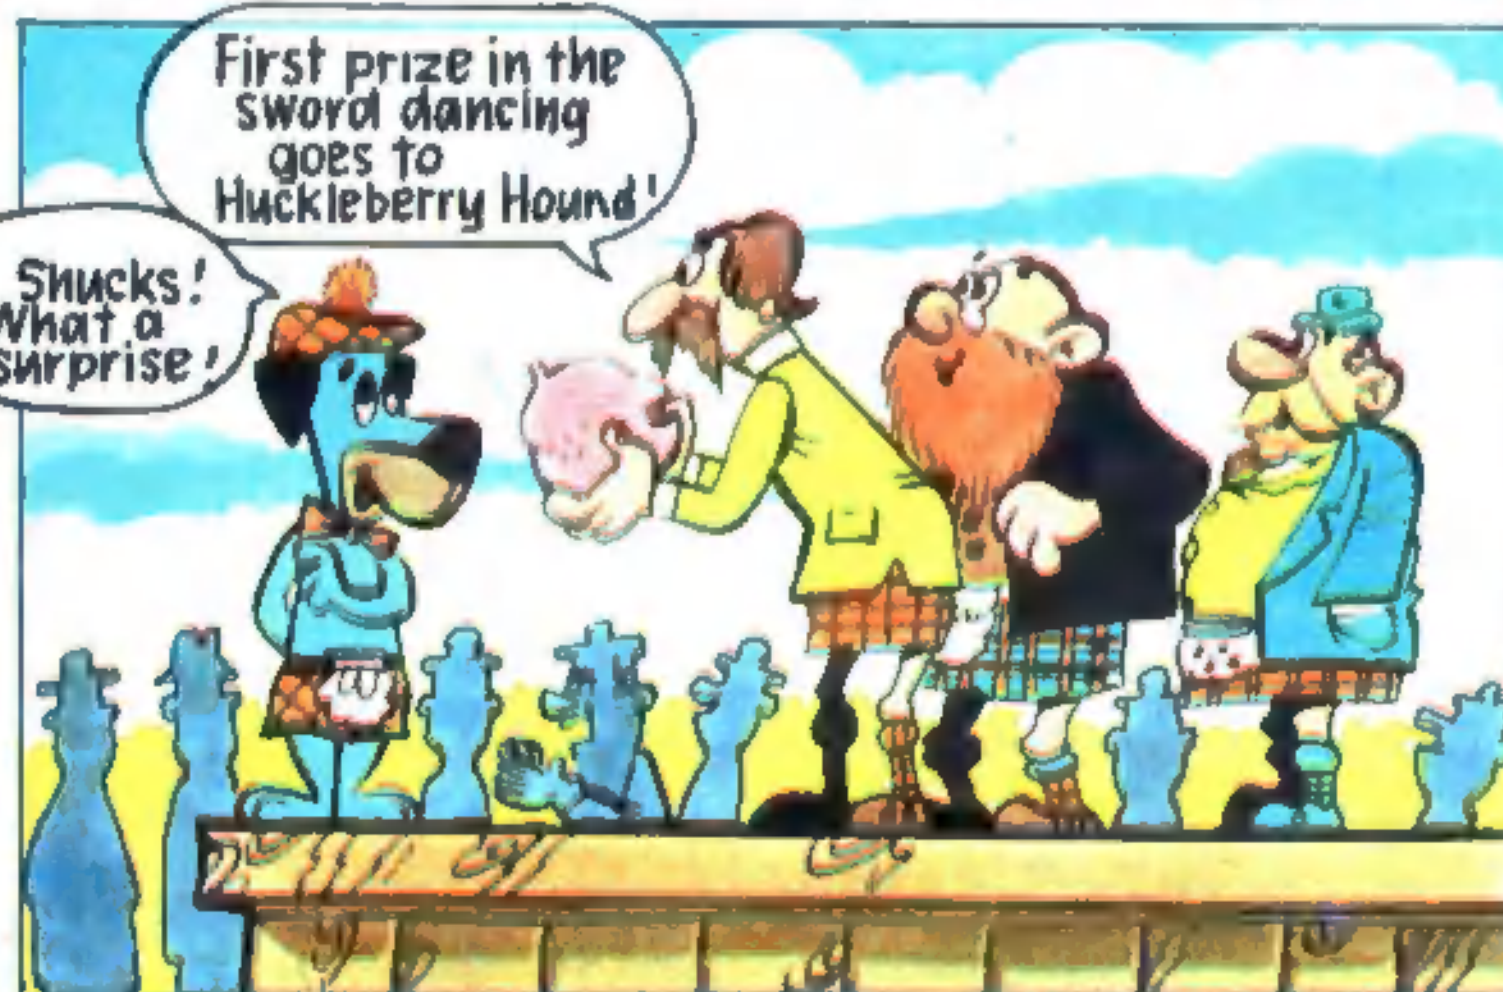

5. "O-oh!" gasped the people as Huck slowly raised the heavy caber in the air. "Ouch!" cried Huck as he dropped it and it landed on his toe. He began to hop about because his toe was hurting him, and Mac Ding-a-ling felt rather worried about him.

6. "Try again!" called Wee McGregor, but Huck thought he'd rather hop around and nurse his poor, bruised toe. It wasn't badly hurt, but he hoped that the hopping would make it feel better. He didn't notice that he was hopping on to the stage.

7. He hopped right on to the platform where the dancing competition was going on. Round and round he went while a man played the bagpipes. The judges were delighted. "That's the best sword dancing I've seen today," said one of the judges.

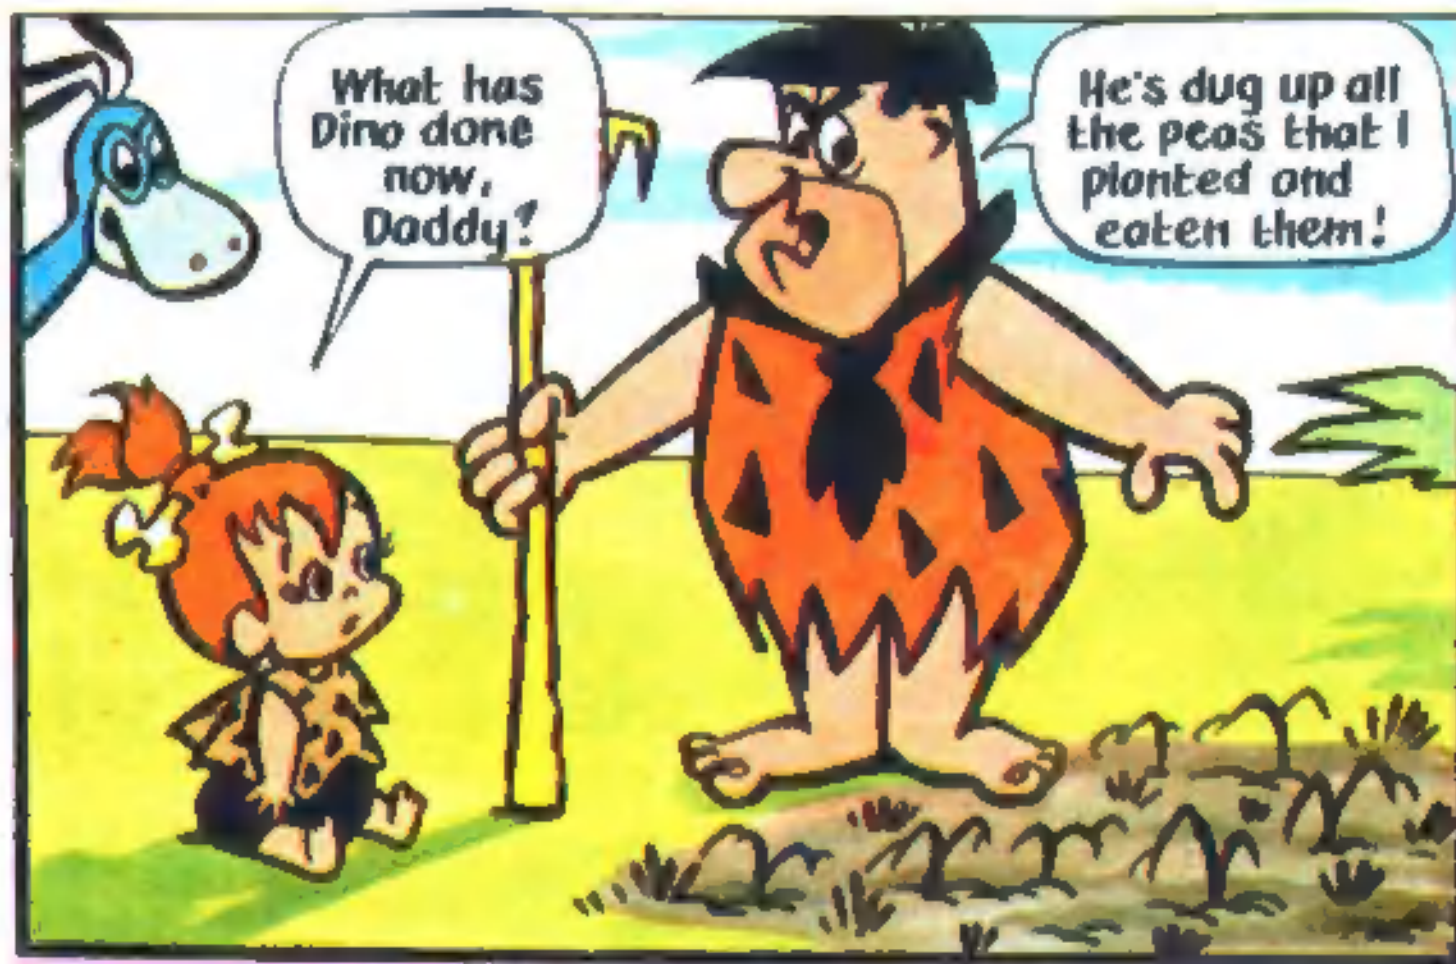

8. When Huck's toe felt better, and he stopped hopping, he was amazed to find he'd won first prize. This turned out to be a haggis, a very special Scottish dish. "Gee, thanks!" said Huck, but he decided he'd give it to Mac Ding-a-ling.

9. Wee McGregor and Mac Ding-a-ling saw Huck off at the station, as he set off on his travels once more. "Come and see us again," cried Wee McGregor. "Have fun in Wales," shouted Mac Ding-a-ling. "I will," smiled Huck. "I can hardly wait till next week!"

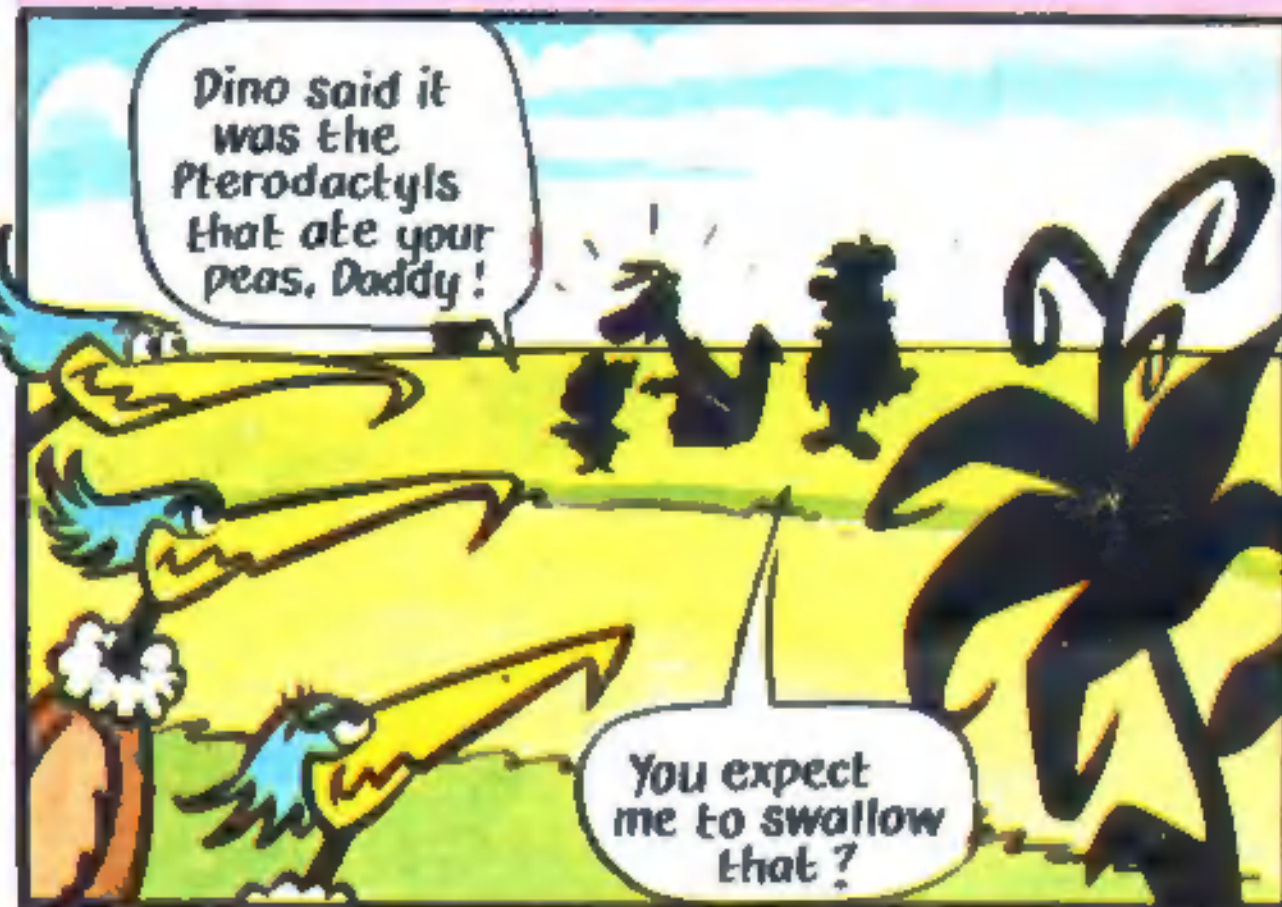

FUN with The FLINTSTONES

THE PEA PATCH

1. Have you noticed how these Flintstone stories usually start with Fred shouting about something? His little daughter, Pebbles, knows it's usually Dino, her pet Dinosaur, who's in trouble. This time Fred was shouting from the pea patch in the garden that Dino must go!

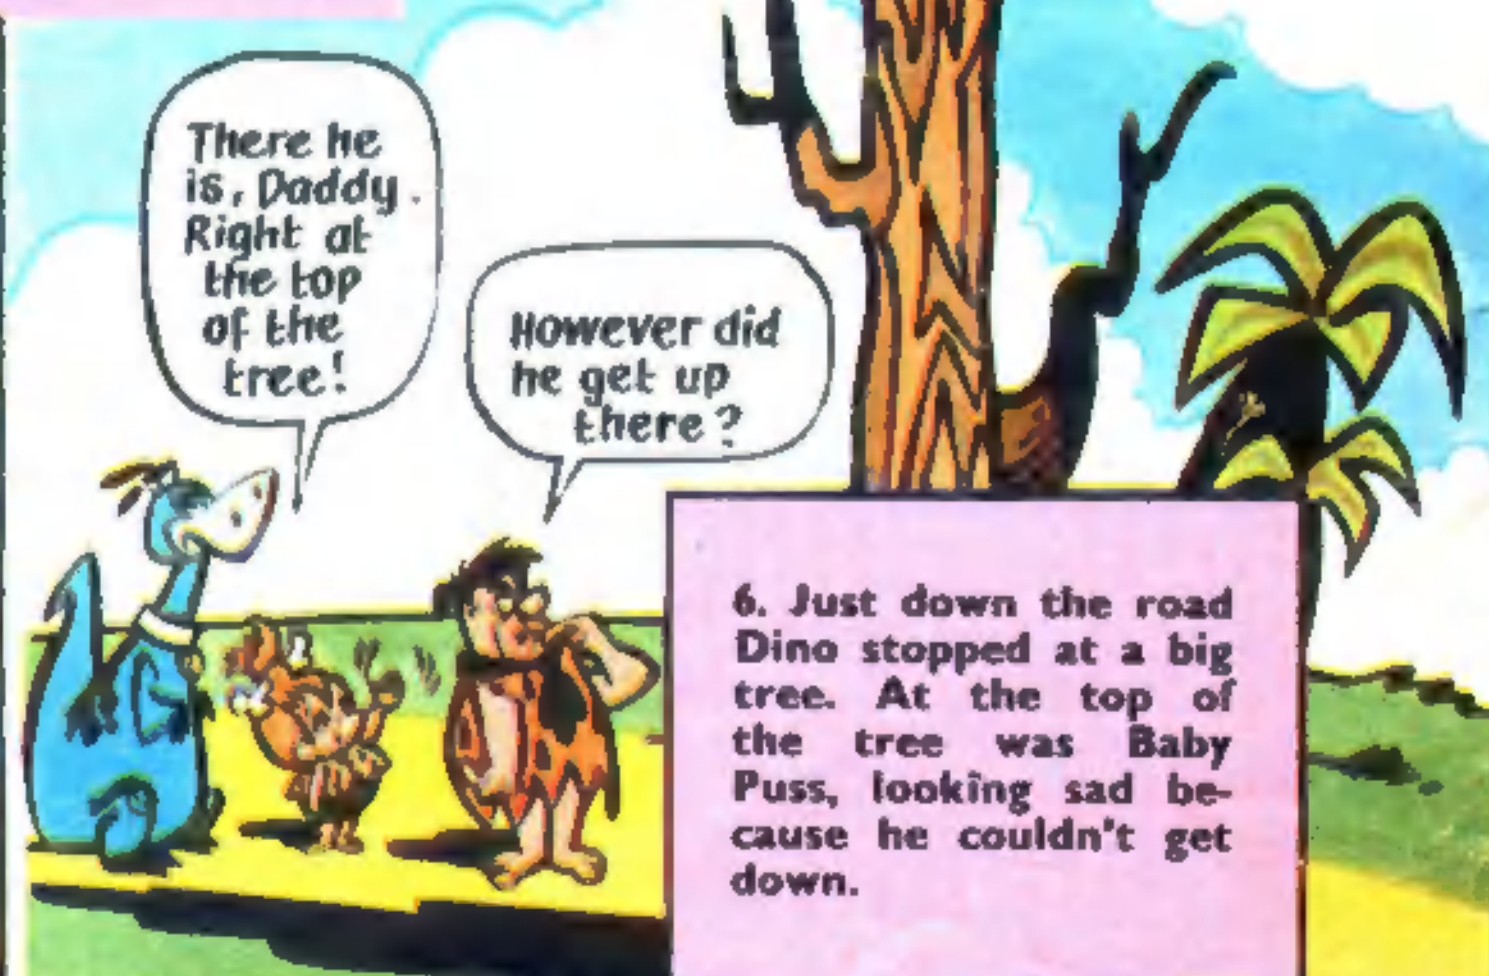

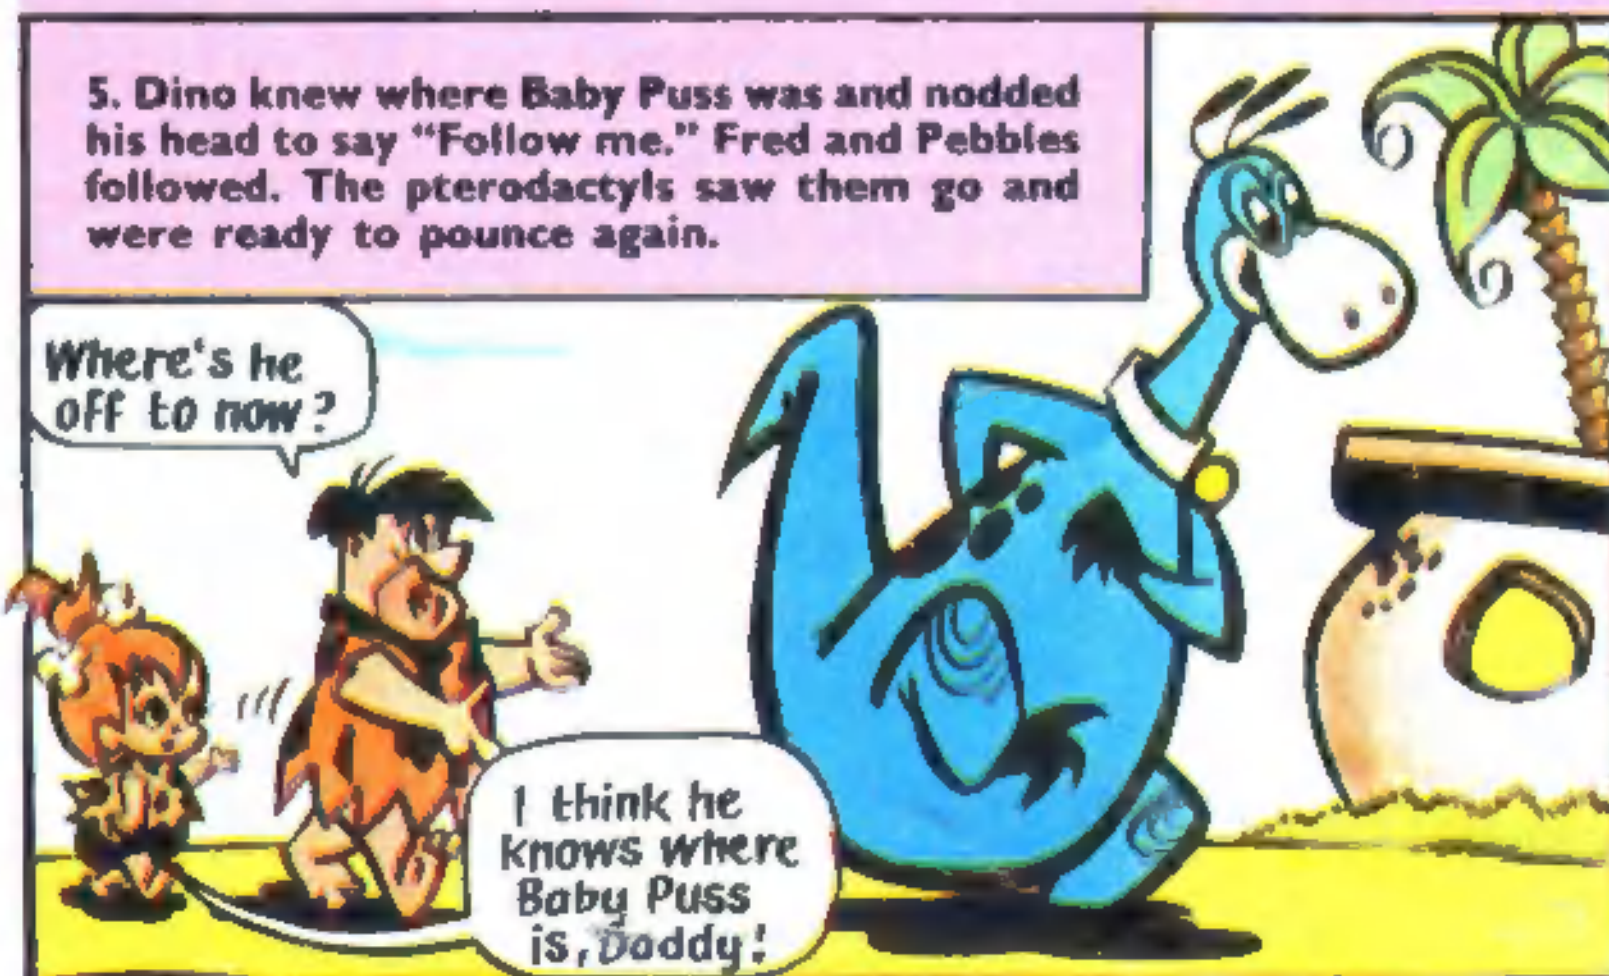

2. "Did you eat Daddy's peas?" Pebbles asked Dino. Dino shook his head, but Fred did not believe him. The ground where his peas had been was covered with Dino's footprints. But Dino was not the kind of dinosaur that went around telling fibs.

3. Dino had seen who had eaten the peas and pointed to the culprits. They were a flock of pterodactyls perched up in a tree. Pterodactyls were early birds that looked like flying lizards. Ask a grown-up how to pronounce their funny name.

4. Fred didn't believe the birds would go near the peas while Baby Puss, the neighbour's cat, was around. But where was Baby Puss?

5. Dino knew where Baby Puss was and nodded his head to say "Follow me." Fred and Pebbles followed. The pterodactyls saw them go and were ready to pounce again.

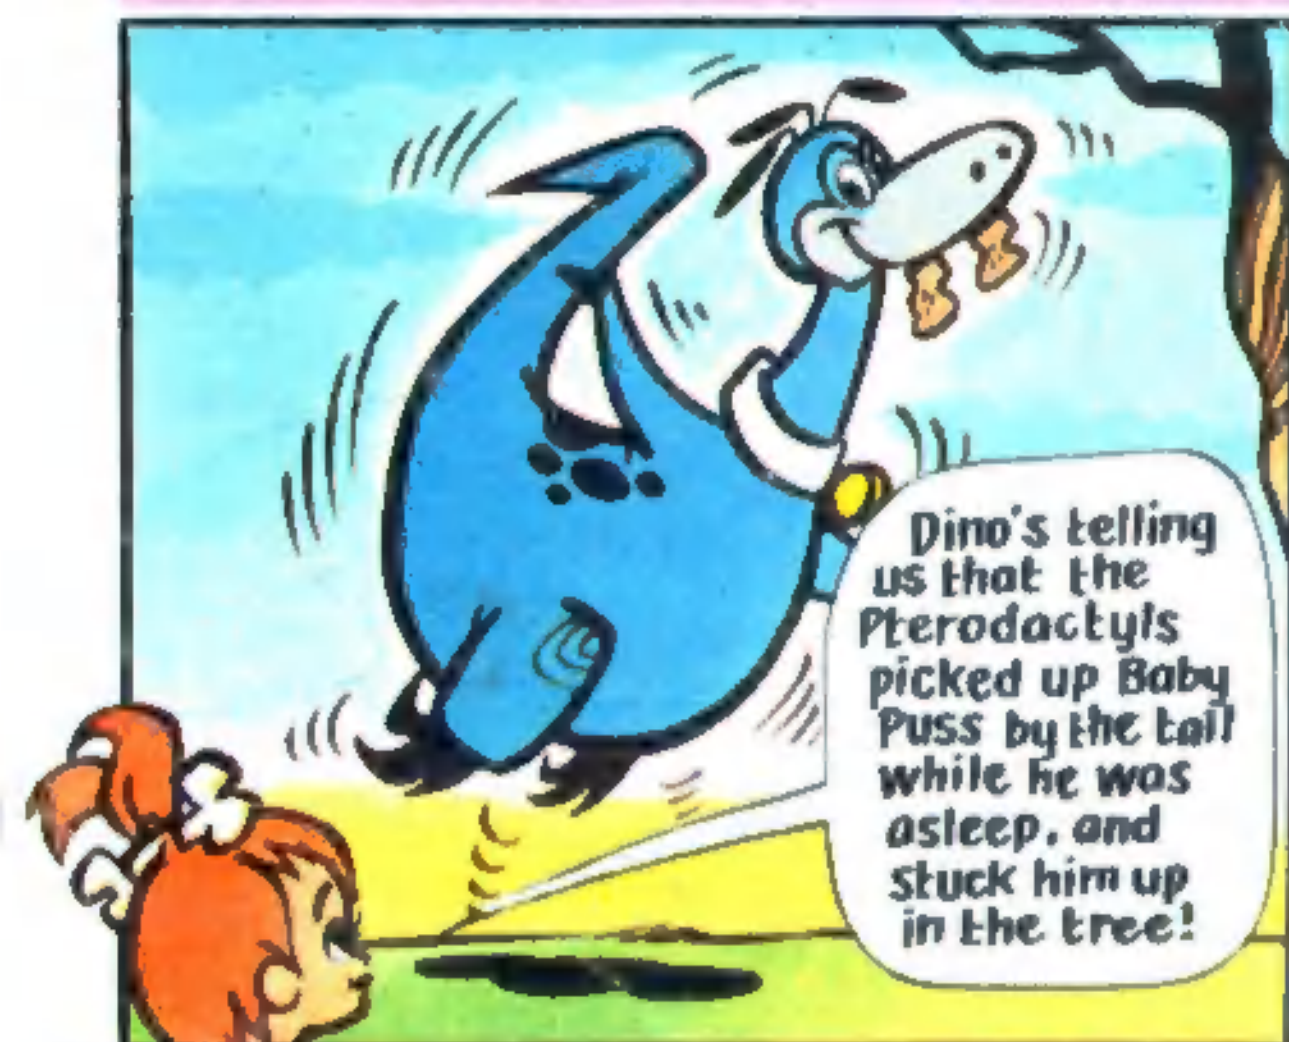

6. Just down the road Dino stopped at a big tree. At the top of the tree was Baby Puss, looking sad because he couldn't get down.

7. Fred thought that perhaps a stone age dog had chased poor Baby Puss up the tree. But Dino had seen what had happened. He pointed back to the pterodactyls. They were swooping down again to gobble up more of Fred's peas.

8. Dino put two long pointed stones in his mouth.

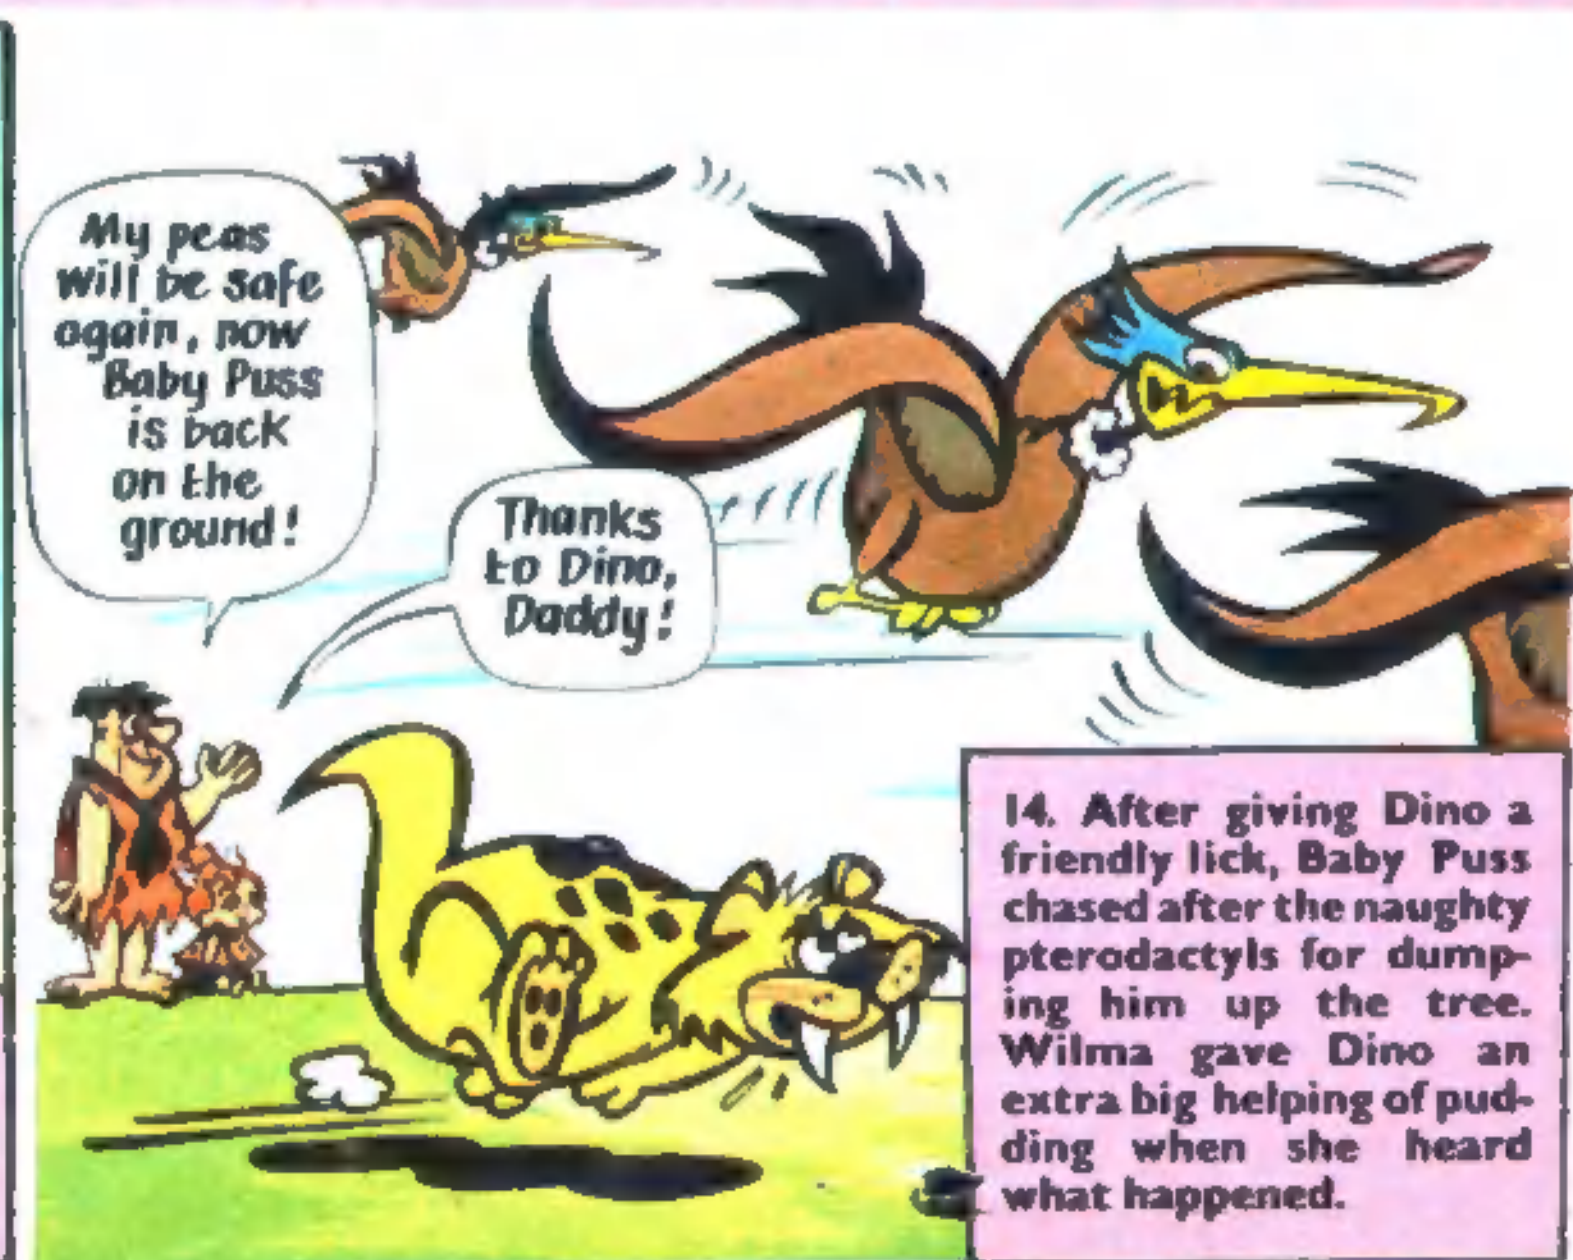

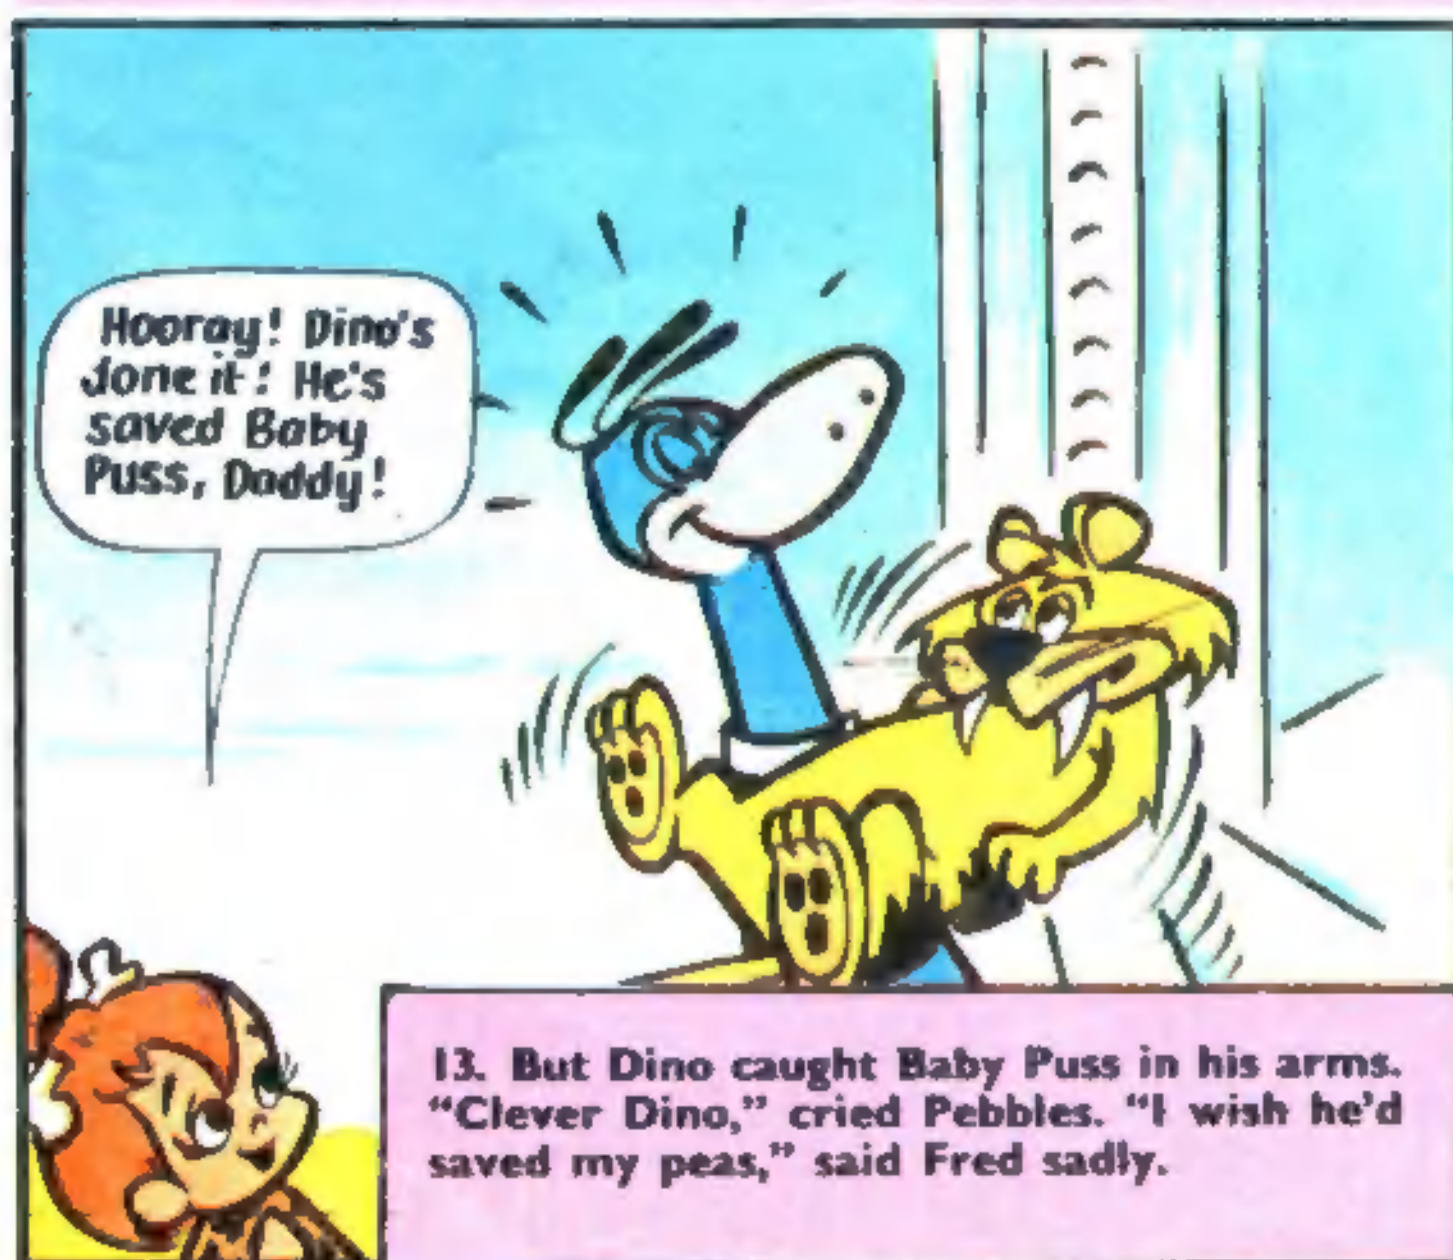

9. Dino nodded his head when Fred asked if he was pretending to be a sabre toothed cat. Then he closed his eyes as if asleep. Taking the stones from his mouth he then flapped his arms, "I think he's a pterodactyl now," said Pebbles.

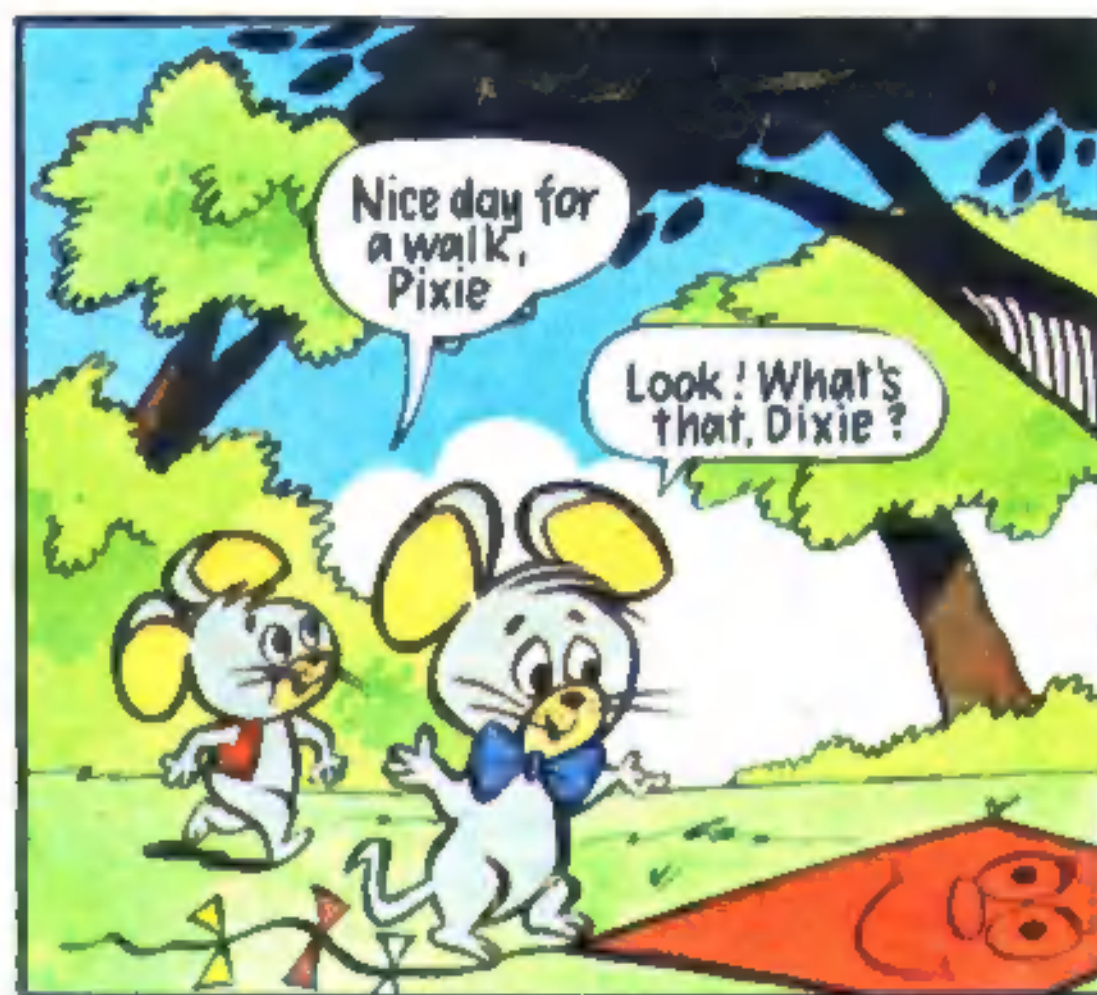

10. After flapping his arms, Dino closed his eyes again. Then, grabbing his own tail, he nearly lifted himself off the ground. Fred was flummoxed. Dino pointed to Baby Puss in the tree, and Pebbles knew what he meant.

11. Pebbles was able to tell Fred how Baby Puss got to be up in the tree. While they were wondering what to do next, Dino started to shake the tree.

12. "Baby Puss will fall if you go on shaking the tree like that," shouted Fred. Dino nodded happily. Then, with a loud MEEOW! Baby Puss came toppling down. "Poor Baby Puss," gasped Pebbles.

Pixie Dixie and Mr JINKS

1. The sun was shining brightly the other morning so Pixie and Dixie, the two little mice, went for a walk in the park. Pixie soon saw something very strange lying on the ground. It was red and diamond-shaped.

2. "Why, it's a kite!" cried Dixie. "Some little boy or girl must have lost it." The wind had blown it away from its owner. "Let's try to fly it," said Dixie. "We can take it in turns to hold the string. What do you say, Pixie?"

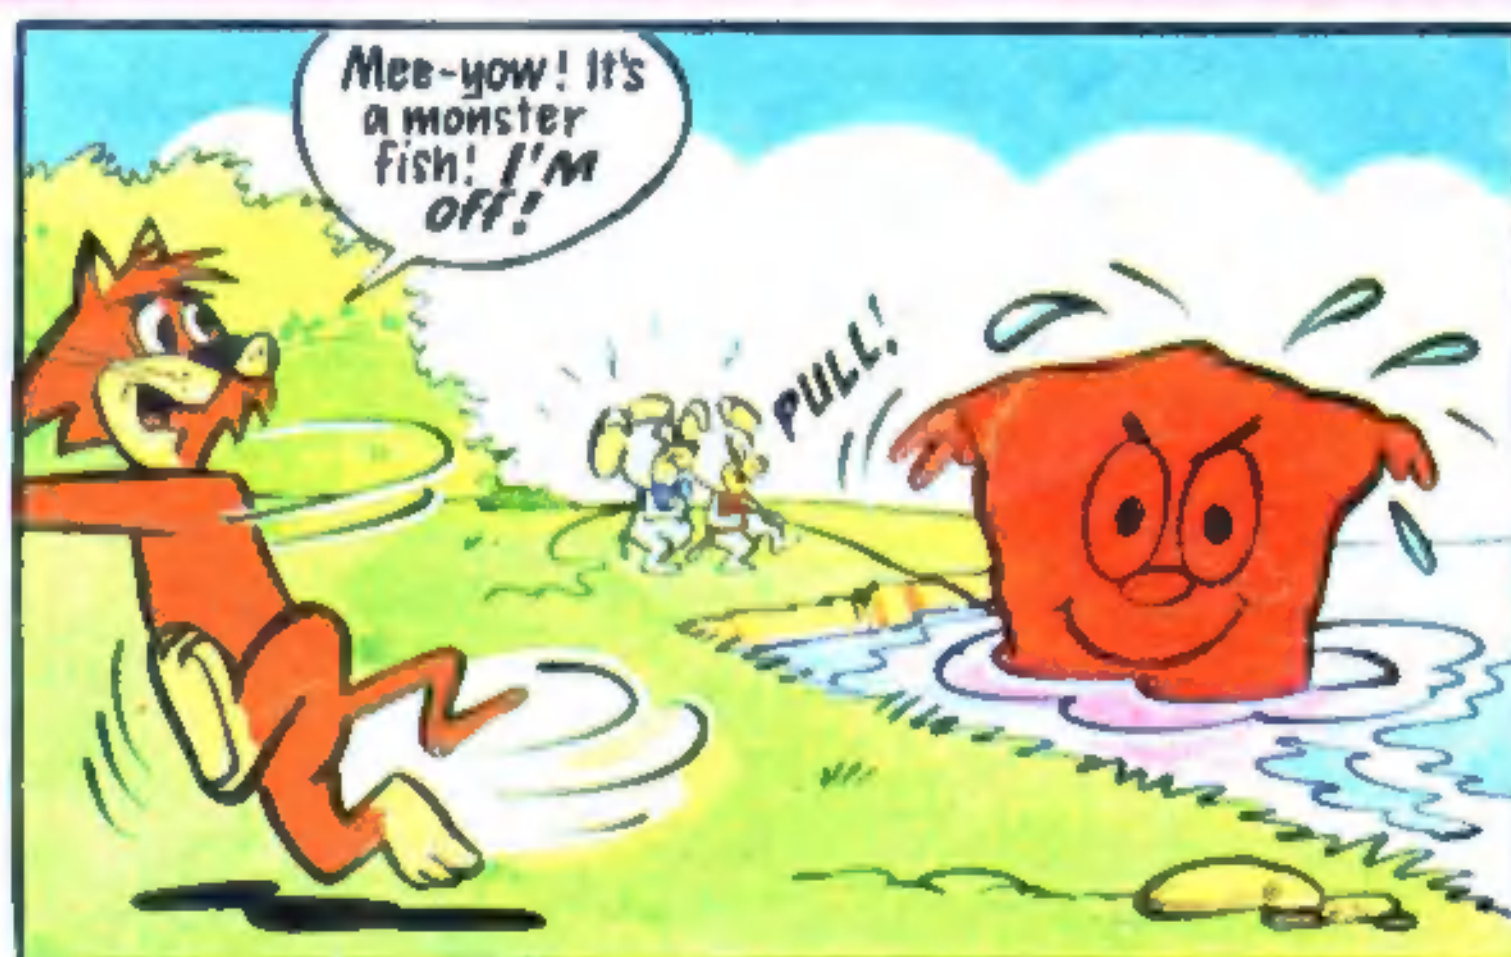

3. "Oh, yes, let's!" agreed Pixie in great excitement. So Pixie took hold of the string of the kite and they ran along as quickly as they could. The kite soon began to rise up in the air behind them. Both the little mice were very thrilled to be able to fly it.

4. "Hooray! The kite is flying higher and higher," shouted Dixie. And sure enough, the kite was flying through the air with the greatest of ease. Suddenly, as the mice slowed down, the kite began falling. Then there was a loud SPLASH! as it landed in the park pond.

5. From behind a bush where he had been hiding, up popped Mr. Jinks. He is the big cat who is always trying to catch the little mice, who he calls "Meeces." "What are you two up to?" Mr. Jinks asked in a gruff voice to scare the mice. "Fishing."

6. "Oh, no, Mr. Jinks," said Pixie and Dixie. "Look!" And they pulled hard on the string of the kite. Up from under the water it came and gave Mr. Jinks such a surprise! You see, it had a fierce face painted on it. Poor Mr. Jinks decided to run away quickly!